

Research Expert Dies in Car Plunge

Dr. L. C. Coleman Victim of Crash

Victim of an early-morning car crash, Dr. Leslie Charles Coleman, CIE, died at St. Joseph's Hospital shortly after 9 a.m. today. He was 75.

Dr. Coleman was described by experts as the foremost cancer research scientist in Canada and was venerated by the people of Mysore, India, whom he served for 25 years.

He died about three hours after police extricated him from his demolished car. It had plunged from Royal Oak Avenue into a culvert at 5.45 a.m. Police thought light fog which blanketed the area might have been responsible for the accident.

The fatality was the first traffic death in Saanich this year, the fifth in the district.

The elderly doctor had been on his way to work at the Dominion Pathological Laboratory near the Dominion Experimental Farm in Saanichton. Authorities there said Dr. Coleman made a habit of beginning his laboratory day at about 6 a.m.

LOUD CRASH

The sound of the crash awakened residents in the area adjacent to where Royal Oak Avenue joins with the Pat Bay Highway at 5.45 a.m. Saanich police said a Mr. Vickers phoned and when the patrol car arrived at the scene three minutes later he assisted. "My whole house shook at the crash," he said.

The car was on its side and Dr. Coleman was pinned with one leg under the seat and the other out the door with the door jammed closed against it. His head was badly injured and his face cut.

The combined efforts of Sgt. J. Hamilton and other residents and officers rocked the car free of the driver and he was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital. He had several hip and head injuries.

The car was towed to Saanich police station.

"MOST-OUTSTANDING"

Dr. Coleman, who lived at 2136 Ferndale Road, was currently employed with cancer research for the Canadian Cancer Institute. Little more than a year ago, director of the Canadian Research Foundation at Toronto, Dr. G. W. Warwick, described Dr. Coleman's work as "the most outstanding of any research supported by the Cancer Institute in Canada." He made the statement to Dr. William Newton, head of the (Continued on Page 20)

Maine Elects Democratic Governor

From UP and AP Dispatches
PORTLAND, Me. — Maine voters sent the political weather vane spinning dizzily today by electing their first Democratic governor in 20 years while returning to office every major Republican candidate.

Edmund S. Muskie, 39-year-old Democratic national committeeman, defeated Governor Burton M. Cross, 51, in Monday's first United States state election of 1954.

In modern times, no other Republican governor has ever been denied a second term in Maine.

The Republicans, however, sent Margaret Chase Smith back to the U.S. Senate for a second term and kept their three members of the federal House of Representatives.

"My election was a crystallization of a long-time general feeling that all was not right with state affairs," Muskie said. "It is also possible the national climate affected the voters."

TURNED DEFEAT INTO VICTORY

Funny Sight of Joan In Undies Spurred Star

TORONTO (UP) — Marilyn Bell's coach, Gus Ryder, told today how Marilyn's closest friend, Joan Cook, plunged in with her and gave her heart to swim the last few strokes.

This is Ryder's story: "Marilyn was crying and I knew we had to do something desperate, so I told Joan to take off her slacks and dive in."

"She protested that she hadn't a bathing suit or cap, but I told her to swim in her panties and brassiere, or whatever it is the girls wear."

"She looked so funny that Marilyn burst out laughing and started swimming stronger than ever. Joan swam alongside of her for about 50 yards. That did the trick and she deserves a lot of credit."

PETERBOROUGH LACROSSE FLOOR WOULD SUIT MARILYN

Victoria Shamrocks will insist that the Canadian lacrosse championships be moved if weather conditions at Peterborough do not allow for a dry floor for the series opener scheduled Wednesday night.

Club officials made this fact plain today as they awaited the arrival of CLA officials in Peterborough, writes Times staff reporter Denby Boyd from Peterborough.

Boyd, who is covering the series for The Times, intimates that Miller Bowl, the outdoor box at Peterborough, is more suited for a swim attempt by Marilyn Bell, than for lacrosse at the moment.

His story appears on page 8.
(CJVI announced today that a running story of each game will be carried. The broadcast Wednesday night will start at 5.30 p.m.)

ACROSS CANADA WITH MONSARRAT GANDER FIRST STOP AS FOG HALTS PLANE

The hair-trigger schedule and meticulous planning of this trans-Canada tour has fallen flat on its face already. I meant to start the journey at St. John's, Newfoundland. But I never got there—not on Day One, anyway. St. John's was fogged in, and our plane put down at Gander instead. It didn't matter. Gander has given, the countless thousands of trans-Atlantic travellers, their first glimpse of Canada. It might as well do that for me.

We landed about mid-day—forty-four of us, a few angry, a few depressed, most of us not caring a great deal either way. Trans-Canada Airlines, with their usual efficiency, went to work on the refugees. They found us beds if we wanted to stay overnight, or a train to St. John's if we preferred to press on; the air-borne die-hards were given dinner and the promise of a plane next morning. I put myself, contentedly, in the last category.

A CHEERFUL SPOT
Gander is a huge, cheerful, totally air-minded town, surrounded by trees, scrub water, and cool sunny air. Every week, 400 planes fly in and out; every week, 11,000 passengers; in 23 different airlines, make it their temporary home.

It was very crowded, the night we spent there, with some of those 11,000 passengers, and aircrews in a dozen different uniforms; with servicemen, children, bush-pilots, and us. They have a cocktail bar there called the "Big Dipper," open (for transients) twenty-four hours a day. They have a restaurant, ditto, ditto. They also have a lot of places, continually landing and taking off; necessary to an airline, no doubt, but not good for sleep.

So instead of turning in, I sent off five postcard views of the Big Dipper, and wrote my daily quota of words. These are some of them.

Later, a large efficient man from CBC came up with a well-coping smile, and a tape-recorder. He had recently interviewed (he said) Halie Selassie, Humphrey Bogart, and a sister of Zsa Zsa Gabor. How about Monsarrat?

NICHOLAS MONSARRAT author of "The Cruel Sea" and "The Story of Father Costello", is presently on leave from his duties as Director of the United Kingdom Information Office at Ottawa.

The competition seemed pretty hot, but I couldn't say no. Not after five postcard views of the Big Dipper.

ON TO ST. JOHN'S
Next morning we got into gear again, and flew down to St. John's, in fifty-five minutes, as against eleven hours in the train. The relief plane took us smoothly across green country, hundreds of lakes (Newfoundland is 30% water), and miles of timber land. The cut timber moving down the streams had been corralled into queer shapes and patterns, just like (if Newfoundland will allow a Federal comparison) the timber below the Inter-Provincial bridge at Ottawa.

Then St. John's. The Newfoundland Hotel had given me just the room I wanted, with just the view I hoped for: across the harbour, through the narrows, and straight out into the Atlantic. It's a view I had seen many times before, from the bridge of a corvette, ten and twelve years ago. This version was a lot more comfortable, though of course it cost a little more (European plan).

WASTING TIME
But the drawback of having a room overlooking a harbor is that you don't get a stroke of work done, from dawn to dusk. I don't know whether there is a more enjoyable way of wasting time than watching ships moving about; I've never found one. To me, it has always been fascinating; it beats watching the trains come in, every time. It was so now, as I looked down (Continued on Page 20)

ON GERMAN ARMS SCHEME

Eden Wins Four Nations To New Plan

ROME (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden won Italy's support today for rearming West Germany as a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The Italians said they also would be willing to accept West Germany as a partner in the Brussels defense pact that links Britain's armed forces to the Continent.

Whereas the Italians told Eden they preferred West Germany in NATO, they admitted the second alternative might ease French fears that a re-armed Germany would outweigh other partners in a European defense alliance.

ARMED BALANCE

Britain refused to join the now-rejected European Defense Community (EDC) despite the French demands. As a member of the 1948 Brussels Treaty Organizations, however, her armed forces automatically balance those of a rearmed West Germany.

Eden conferred with Italian politicians, after reaching a "complete agreement" with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Bonn Monday, on plans to restore West German sovereignty and rearm the country.

PARIS LAST

Eden, now making a "super salesman's" tour of the western European capitals, already had found supporters of the British plan to rearm Germany among the foreign ministers of Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

His final stop will be Paris and a meeting with Premier Pierre Mendes-France, whose parliament killed EDC in a devastating vote that damaged Adenauer's position.

CANADA INFORMED

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Secretary Eden will confer with the Canadian high commissioner, Norman Robertson, on Eden's return from his six-day western European tour, a Canada House spokesman said today.

The meeting, the third recently between the two diplomats, will provide the Canadian government with a full picture of Eden's findings in the wake of the collapse of the European Defense Community and the reception accorded on the Continent to his proposals for rearming Germany.

In addition, Canada will be among North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries to hear a private report by Eden Thursday in Paris. Eden is expected home later that day.

WIRE BRIEFS

Richards Quits Sox

CHICAGO (UP)—Paul Richards has resigned as manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Marty Marion will replace him effective tonight and for the 1955 season, the Sox announced today.

Richards will become general manager of the Baltimore club, presumably on a three-year contract at $50,000 per year.

Body Washed Ashore

VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP sought today to identify the body of a man found washed ashore near the searchlight towers at Point Grey.

Marlene Advances

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (UP)—In her second round match of the Women's Amateur National Golf championship, Marlene Stewart, Canadian champion, defeated Mrs. John Capers, Ardmore, Pa., 4 and 2.

More Bus Fare Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP)—Separate appeals to the provincial cabinet against recent B.C. Electric bus fare increases on the Lower Mainland will be made by Burnaby, New Westminster and Vancouver. There will be no joint appeal by the municipalities involved.

30 Feared Killed

LISBON, Portugal (UP)—Twenty-one bodies had been recovered today from the wreckage of a holiday train derailed in southern Portugal, and authorities feared the death toll may reach 30 or more. More than 120 passengers were injured.

Love Walked in— Busmen Walked Out

LONDON (UP) — The labor movement won a victory today, but love lost a battle.

Dennis Crook and Christina Drum went back to work, ending a strike which had tied up several of London's bus routes for several days.

The strike was off and so for the moment, were their wedding plans.

Dennis is a bus conductor and Christina is a bus conductress. He is 26 and she is 23 and as such things will, they fell in love.

They saved their money and planned to marry. To get enough, they started to work overtime.

This, it seemed, was against union policy. So 500 of their co-workers at the London transport commission's Willesden garage went on strike, dislocating bus services in many areas and forcing thousands of Londoners to walk.

Dennis and Christina were shocked, but they quickly joined the picket line to help.

Rodeo Cruelty Trial Started

Animals used in the Cowichan Exhibition rodeo at Duncan Friday and Saturday suffered "unnecessary abuse," Mrs. Judith Zach, president of the Anti-Rodeo Society of Victoria, said in Duncan police court today.

She testified at the trial of Foss Hoy, Fraser Valley, owner of some of the animals used in the rodeo. He was charged by Mrs. Zach and Capt. and Mrs. James Barr, also of Victoria, with causing cruelty to animals.

Defense counsel J. Davie of Duncan recounted an instance during a performance when a rider fell from his horse and was dragged along the ground.

"While this was going on did you exclaim 'Good! Good! Step on him!'" Mr. Davie asked.

"I probably did," Mrs. Zach answered.

She also said horses were "tortured" by a strap under the groin, and that she had heard a horse "gasp and groan" when it came out of the chute.

Her evidence was corroborated by Capt. and Mrs. Barr.

Early Frost Big Hazard To Hard-Hit Wheat Crop

JUST for the RECORD

SCARED STIFF: In Modesto, Calif., the thief who stole Vernon Ivers' station wagon yesterday abandoned it in great haste a few blocks from Ivers' home.

On the back seat of the station wagon was a local resident—recently deceased. Ivers is an undertaker.

GOOD: In Vancouver the Grosvenor Singers placed a notice in a local newspaper yesterday stating that the "first practice of the season" would be held in the "Hard of Hearing Club Hall."

THE SLEUTH: In Pittsburgh after reporting to police that an unidentified girl swiped his $150 stickpin, William McNulty, 52, decided to do a little sleuthing on his own.

While McNulty was trying to trace the girl, two men darted up behind him, dragged him into a doorway and stole his $1,000 ring, a $72 watch and $4 in cash.

BLIND STREET: In Memphis, Tenn., authorities investigating a collision yesterday at the corner of Lookout and Signal decided the drivers apparently failed to do either.

ERROR: In Rio de Janeiro, a family court judge yesterday ruled against a husband who refused to support his wife because she quit her job after marrying him.

In ordering Silvio Peixoto to contribute to the support of his wife, Mittela, and their child, the judge said it was a "grave error with evil consequences" for a married woman to work.

AS ADVERTISED: In New York three convicts overpowered their guard last night, took his keys and tried to break out of Rockland County's "escape proof" jail. Captured within four minutes while they fumbled with the lock, they decided the jail was exactly as advertised.

Chemical Group President on Victoria Visit

Dr. E. R. Rowzee, F.C.I.C., national president of the Chemical Institute of Canada, and president of Polymer Associates of Sarnia, Ont., visited Victoria after the close of the Western Regional Conference of the Institute held last week at Vancouver. Local members and their wives met him at an informal gathering on Sunday, after which they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pendray, at a garden party held at the Pendray home on Esquimalt Lagoon.

Some 200 leading chemists from research, industrial and educational institutions west of Winnipeg attended. Local chemists included Dr. Peter Mar, president of the Vancouver Island section, and a delegation from the B.C. Department of Mines Laboratory, led by Dr. G. C. B. Cave. Dr. Cave and his associates presented six of the eight papers read at the section on analytical chemistry. Featured speakers included Attorney-General Bonner who spoke on the chemical industry in B.C., and Dr. G. M. Shrum, director of the B.C. Research Council addressed the banquet on "Science and the Changing Patterns of Civilization."

No-Bars Zoo Proposed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 62-acre metropolitan zoo for suburban Vancouver was proposed Monday by three lower Mainland groups.

The zoo was planned on the no-bars principle popular in the larger zoos throughout North America.

The move is backed by the Vancouver Parks Board, Burnaby Municipal Council, and the Lower Mainland Park Advisory committee.

Plans will be submitted in about three weeks' time.

Two Canadians Died in Greenland Plane Disaster

MONTREAL (BUP)—Two Canadians were among the 10 men killed in the crash of a U.S. military transport plane at Thule, Greenland on Sunday.

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada identified the two death victims—five other Canadians injured in the crash as employees engaged in the construction of a telephone plant for the U.S. Air Force.

The two Bell employees killed were identified as J. Emile Blair and Joseph E. Gerard. Provencher, both of Montreal.

A spokesman at the Westover U.S. Air Force base in Massachusetts said a mercy plane was dispatched to Greenland to bring the five Canadian survivors back.

They were identified as James Bryan of Ottawa, Douglas Walter Herbert of Montreal, Joseph Francois Major of St. Johns, Que., Colin Arthur Norman of Montreal and Thomas John O'Rourke of Ottawa.

Fred Astaire's Wife Dies in California

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Fred Astaire, wife of the dancer, died Monday after a long illness.

54, and the former Phyllis Livingston Potter, 46, were married in New York in 1933.

Besides her husband she leaves three children—Fred Jr., 18; Ava, 12, and Peter, 25, a son by a previous marriage.

Duchess, Alexandra Enjoy Gay French-Canadian Party

By JOE MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP)—Princess Alexandra danced into the small hours today following an evening of French-Canadian gaiety in which her mother told of her "discovery" of Canada.

The princess, just 17, danced with Royal Canadian Mounted Police and military officers while some 600 guests at a civic banquet in the swank Windsor Hotel watched.

The Duchess of Kent, meanwhile, had retired after delivering a speech in which she said that her brief visit to Canada, less than three weeks, had shown her the tremendous growth and the even more impressive potentialities of the country.

It was hospitality in a sense that Montreal alone knows how to give, climax to a near-week visit here.

Rails, Union Expected to Approve Rules for Dispute Arbitration

MONTREAL (BUP)—Major railroads and representatives of 145,000 of their non-operating employees were expected to officially approve today the ground rules under which a government arbitrator will settle the dispute that nearly erupted into a nationwide rail strike last month.

The terms of reference for the arbitration hearings were agreed on by the railroads and officials of 14 unions at separate meetings Monday.

It was expected they would be signed by both sides today after which the government will announce the name of the arbitrator who has already been chosen.

Both the railroads and unions agreed to accept arbitration last month after Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent informed them he would call a special session of parliament to prevent a railway strike.

The railway workers had voted to strike when the companies refused to grant a number of demands including longer vacations after 10 years' service, improved sick pay and other fringe benefits.

Involved in the dispute were the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo and Ontario Northland Railways.

The decision was reached at an emergency meeting of government and Liberal Party leaders after an Opposition-ridden Diet committee voted the summons earlier today.

Previously the prime minister indicated he would ignore the summons even though such action could result in a fine or jail sentence.

Man Who Claimed 'Perfect Crime' Goes on Trial

WELLAND, Ont. (BUP)—Bruce MacLean, 23, goes on trial today on charges of murdering his wife in what he allegedly boasted was the "perfect crime."

Selection of a jury to try the handsome young steelworker was completed Monday. A grand jury considered the case at the opening of the fall sittings of the Supreme Court Monday and returned a true bill.

Mrs. Elizabeth Doreen MacLean drowned in August of last year while she and her husband were canoeing in an inlet of the Welland River.

Her death was considered accidental at the time, but the investigation was reopened after Sylvia Davies, a girl-friend of MacLean's, testified he boasted to her that he had upset the canoe and then swam around while his wife drowned.

COLLEGE WILL REGISTER 300

Registration of students at Victoria College will top the 300 mark this year.

College officials announced today that the number of students registered so far is 294. At the corresponding date last year the figure was only 257, although 287 students were on the rolls by opening day.

On the basis of this, final enrolment this year will probably be close to 320.

Of the 294 registered so far, 229 are enrolled as first-year students and 65 as second-year students.

The college has scheduled its opening assembly for Thursday morning. First lectures will be next Monday.

McCarthy Hearings Completed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A six-member committee today took on the task of drafting a report on the official conduct of Senator Joseph McCarthy.

The report, which may be critical of some of the Wisconsin Republican senator's activities, is to act as a guide to the United States Senate when it returns to the capital later this year to consider whether McCarthy's conduct merits censure.

Whether the committee will make specific recommendations for action, or will content itself with factual findings, has not been determined.

As the public censure hearings wound up late Monday, chairman Arthur Watkins (Rep. Utah), said E. Wallace Chadwick, the committee counsel, and Guy De Furia, his assistant, had "tried their level best to be fair" in presenting evidence on five main categories of charges levelled at McCarthy.

But McCarthy and his lawyer, Edward Williams, contended Chadwick and De Furia had been acting as prosecutors. They indicated they believe any report to which the two contribute will hold that McCarthy overstepped the bounds on one or more of the principal counts against him.

And McCarthy said he was "still disturbed by a statement of Senator Watkins that the jury doesn't have to be impartial."

This was a reference to Watkins' previous statement that many members of the Senate have taken sides for or against McCarthy, and that they cannot for that reason be disqualified from voting when the Senate considers the censure issue.

Bakers Repudiate Executive of Union

VANCOUVER (CP)—Foremen and supervisors employed in Vancouver's struck and locked-out bread firms Monday repudiated the executive of their union by demanding that mediation proposals be immediately implemented as a basis of settlement.

At a protest meeting, 23 foremen and supervisors unanimously backed up mediation recommendations advanced by retired labor department official Michael McGeough last week.

Union executive, meanwhile, has recommended rejection of the proposals which will be voted on Wednesday by the general membership of the striking and locked-out Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Union (AFL-ILC).

The foremen and supervisors had charged earlier that their union executive had "mishandled" the 68-day tieup of major Vancouver bakeries.

$88.7 Million Decline in Farm Income

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian farmers' cash income dropped by $88,700,000 in the first half of 1954.

The bureau of statistics estimated today that cash income declined to $1,093,900,000 from $1,182,600,000 in the similar 1953 period.

It was the second consecutive decline from the peak of $1,241,700,000 in the 1952 January-June period.

Most of the drop resulted from lower returns on grain sales and thus by far the major portion of the decline was felt on the Prairies. Prince Edward Island income also decreased slightly, resulting from smaller earnings on potatoes. Other provinces showed gains. Ontario led with a $24,000,000 increase.

WHEAT CAUSES DROP

The wheat situation was the biggest single factor in the decline. Smaller sales and lower prices reduced cash income from wheat by $110,200,000 to $132,700,000 from $242,900,000 in the half-year period, the bureau said.

HOLIDAY ENDS AT LANSDOWNE

The extended summer holiday for teenagers at the new Lansdowne Junior High School ends this week.

The new school, which was not ready in time to accept students when most youngsters were called back to school Sept. 7, is still not entirely finished but is far enough advanced so that classes may begin.

Pupils beginning grade 7 at Lansdowne must enroll Thursday morning at 9. Grade 8 students must report Friday at 9. Both sessions will be short. The full teaching program will begin Monday.

John Gough, municipal schools inspector, acknowledged today that classes will operate at some slight inconvenience for the rest of the month as tradesmen will still be working in parts of the building not needed for classroom purposes.

Newspapers, Radios Not in Conflict—Keate

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP)—Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Daily Times, said here Monday night he does not believe radio and newspapers are in conflict. The two services are complementary, he said.

Speaking at the annual summer meeting of the B.C. Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Mr. Keate said radio men are coming round to the view that they are publishers, because they publish and disseminate news.

"Both of us have a tremendous responsibility. We have fallen heirs to the avenues and the channels of public communications. These channels have not been given to us, but only loaned. In the highest sense, we are lessees of the public trust. The big single factor that can remove them is public opinion."

A spot check of his newspaper and two private radio stations in the area, Mr. Keate said, showed the ratio in the newspaper was approximately 80 per cent education and information to 20 per cent entertainment and that almost the

From Spring to Autumn

A FEW MONTHS AGO IT WAS freely predicted that the autumn American election would be an orgy of McCarthyism, dead spies and massive retaliation between the Republican and Democratic Parties. The campaign lately launched by President Eisenhower and Mr. Adlai Stevenson bears little resemblance to its advance billing. On the contrary, as American commentators have been quick to observe, this campaign looks more normal and old-fashioned than any since the good old days of Franklin Roosevelt.

Mr. Eisenhower was determined from the beginning to fight the election on his record, and not on the exciting issue of communism-in-government, as urged by some of his followers. His opening campaign speech in Springfield, Illinois, carries through this original strategy. It was keyed to quiet tones, it discussed practical issues, it avoided the recent frenzy of the Congress and it presented the central proposition on which the President is resolved to stand.

That proposition is simple and familiar: The Republican Party, according to its leader, has provided sound government, it has brought the nation safely through an alarming recession and it can be trusted to assure prosperity in the future.

Mr. Eisenhower scrupulously avoids attacking the Democrats for those "twenty years of treason," first revealed by Senator McCarthy in the same historic town of Springfield, Lincoln's birthplace, last year. Instead, the President merely attacks the opposition for being prophets of "gloom and doom," his immediate target in Illinois being the erring economist, Senator Paul Douglas, who was sure, a few months back, that the United States was on the edge of a disastrous depression.

The partisan debate of our neighbors is none of our business in Canada but at least we can see, with the advantage of distance, that the American people are not being presented in this election with a choice between an imaginary loyal, perfect government and a band of traitors, as the Democrats appear in the lurid lexicon of Senator McCarthy.

Nothing, of course, has turned out in Washington as the Republican Party promised in 1952. It never does in democratic politics and a free society.

The Republican Party has not repealed the New Deal. On the contrary, it has expanded social security. It has not balanced the budget but is still running a large deficit. It has not deflated the currency but somewhat increased the money supply, as any government would doubtless have done in the same circumstances. It has not pulled the trigger of atomic war, despite the horrendous speeches of last spring, nor broken with its allies, nor attempted to contract out of the world.

In short, two years of Republican administration have merely enforced the basic process of a democratic society—the principle of compromise. The compromise thus erected, with the usual disregard of consistency, campaign promises and fixed theory, is now offered to the American people for their approval or disapproval. They alone must decide whether they are satisfied with it or not.

The rest of the free world sleeps more easily when the shattering explosions of the spring are muted in the quiet and rather commonplace debate of the autumn hustings.

A Timely Look at Homo Sapiens

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, the Most Reverend Geoffrey Fisher, left no doubts in the minds of his many Victoria listeners that he thoroughly grasps the essential problems of the world of today—and that he is as thoroughly certain of the correct answer to them.

Of particular interest to many persons, no matter what their creed or religious conviction, was his reference to the dehumanizing effect of modern civilization on the men and women of our era. "The pressures on modern man," said His Grace, "are to rob him of his personality. . . . The pressure of the world is to make us treat ourselves and each other as things."

Dr. Fisher sees it as the duty of everyone to fight this trend, to accept the challenge of "the terrific problem of keeping men and women human."

It took only a few words from this great cleric and scholar to strip much of the tinsel from modern living and show the tawdriness of the "luggage" with which we encumber our lives. So many of the occupations in which we enmesh our whole existence, so many of the activities which engage all our waking moments, stood out, beneath his searching gaze, as the most trivial and worthless of pastimes.

How many of us spend our lives plunging down dead-end byways, wandering in spiritual wastelands, far off the broad highways of the Creator's plan. How many have been robbed of personality, have robbed themselves of personality, through becoming submerged in mass entertainment, mass thought, mass emotion.

"Growth of personality is growth of the spirit—in God's Spirit," Dr. Fisher reminded us. It was a timely reminder in these days, the heed of it and the appreciation for it being only partially demonstrated in the unprecedented crowds which sought to hear the Primate's message.

Interpreting—Good and Bad

VANCOUVER LABOR DELEGATE Tom Alsbury serves a valuable purpose when he urges attendants at the Trades Union Congress in Brighton, England, not to judge the United States on the basis of Senator McCarthy's behaviour and statements.

Mr. Alsbury appears in the familiar role of interpreter between the U.S. and Britain. He is quite in order, as such, in drawing attention to the fact that "many thousands of people across the Atlantic . . . abhor McCarthyism as much as anyone in this hall."

"Unfortunately," the Vancouver man adds, "all too often screaming headlines are devoted to the hot-heads, blockheads and empty heads on both sides of the Atlantic. . . . It is high time in the interests of better understanding among people of Britain, the United States and Canada that this practice was reversed."

The intent of Mr. Alsbury's latter remark will be understood. But it might be advisable for the Canadian delegate to note that without "screaming headlines" the activities of such people might escape public notice, might produce an uninformed and supine people on which to inflict the ideas of "hot-heads, blockheads and empty heads."

But Mr. Alsbury does something less than a useful service when he runs down his own country. It is literally true, he says in criticism of housing in Canada, that "you can't see the houses for the trees—they haven't been built yet."

Where has Mr. Alsbury been? Scarcely an undeveloped area exists in Victoria today. Housing projects and new subdivisions have been opened up even at the expense of eliminating attractive woodlands. And there is no suggestion that conditions prevailing in Victoria are not duplicated elsewhere in Canada.

Against which tree has Mr. Alsbury pressed his face so closely that he couldn't see the construction work going on around him?

'Per Ardua . . .'

OUR SYMPATHY IS EXTENDED to Garrett Cashman, the 27-year-old Albany dancing teacher and hypnotist, who satisfied a boyhood ambition to go for a balloon ride and faced court action for his accomplishment.

Cashman had wanted to go up ever since he was eight years old. Recently he acquired the balloons, paid to have them filled with gas, put a sandwich in his pocket and took off in a bosun's chair. The flight scared him as he gazed down on Albany. The sun popped some of his balloons, but he finally landed, dragging a boat anchor to stop. Then he faced a charge of flying without a license.

Somehow the charge seems a little unfair. Nobody imposed that type of sanction on Icarus or Daedalus when they took to the air. And if Blanchard faced such technicalities, it isn't common knowledge.

A man's ambition carried him into the clouds and above. The authorities, adopting the attitude of the Australian Empire Games official when his diver, Kevin Newell, went AWOL, say "We can't have coves doing tricks like that." Maybe we can't, but there's something we admire in Mr. Cashman. We'd like to give him a laurel inscribed with the air force motto. In his own way, he rose through difficulties to the stars.

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Under the Merciful Moon

THE days of summer, 1954, have been deplorable, by general public consent (however the weather experts may measure them). But the nights have been glorious. Somehow nature seems to have confused her timetable and lost her schedule. She cloaked the sun by day and paraded the stars by night, as if to tease humanity.

Again and again the countryman has gone to bed under a clear sky and a soft blanket of moonlight, only to be roused at dawn by the patter of raindrops. The urban man may not have noticed this curious summer freak, his eyes being dazzled at night by the glow of the urban lights. The rustic has gazed up at the glittering vault of darkness and wondered whether nature had lost her way.

A SENSIBLE man wastes no time protesting the arrangements of the universe or reading the official record of the weather. He accommodates himself to the timetable, however absurd it may be. Since he can find no daytime sun, he goes forth to enjoy the moon and stars while his urban brother goes only to bed, or to some riotous entertainment under artificial light.

In modern civilization night, or about half our living time, is quite lost to most people, but it has its merits if you care to look for them. It has, indeed, a merit unknown today—it hides the ugliness of things and the scars of man across the face of the earth.

THUS a country road by day may be spoiled by the axeman's litter, by the beer bottles, tin cans and other rubbish by which civilized motorists mark their triumphal progress through the country. At night that same road is a spectacle so startling and dramatic that no stage designer would dare to imitate it.

The blacktop pavement, certainly no ornament under the sun, becomes, in moonlight, a stream of molten silver. The charred dead tree, pathetic and hideous in daylight, stands against the stars as if it had been specially carved, like a superior totem pole, for the eye's delight. The logged-off hills hang like rich backdrops of velvet, cunningly sowed and arranged by expert hands. A white cottage by a quiet lake, some poor creation of amateur carpenters and monstrous by day, is a Greek temple, an ancient castle or almost the Taj Mahal itself in the imagination of the beholder. The trunks of the forest glow phosphorescent, where the moonbeams find them, like the columns of the Acropolis (but better shaped).

THE WORLD, in short, takes on a new dimension, or rather loses the dimensions of ugliness which man has given it. Merciful is the night in its secrecy and disguise, and wise the Providence which provided it for man's relief. It is not nature's fault but man's if he does not appreciate this cycle, if he buries half his lifetime in bedtime unconsciousness. He needs sleep, of course, more than he usually cares to take, but in a summer like that now mercifully past he should have slept by day, when nature offered nothing but her frown, and walked by night when she smiled an invitation to the outdoors.

FEW MEN, I suppose, accepted that invitation. Emerson put this matter properly long ago when he observed that if the stars appeared only once in a century they would be appreciated. Then, he said, whole generations would await with eagerness this mighty spectacle, some of them would die without witnessing it, and fathers would tell their incredulous grandchildren that they had once seen the sky on fire and the darkness shot through with countless arrows of light.

But since the stars appear frequently they are taken for granted, like most of the important things, and most of us go to bed without even looking upward to the universal mystery, to that swarming multitude of suns and planets more numerous, the astronomers tell us, than all the particles of sand on all the seashores of our own world.

WELL, this has been a pretty poor daytime season but one of the best on record for the owl, the night hawk, the countryman and other creatures of superior intelligence.

No one is likely to realize that, however, unless he has altered his habits to fit the reversed timetable of nature, when the sun has taken a well-earned holiday and the moon, its understudy, has occupied the centre of the stage, with a truly brilliant performance, generally ignored by a sleepy audience.

U.S. Reaction to Mr. Attlee's Travels

New York Times

THERE is much food for reflection in the first installment of Clement R. Attlee's report on his recent trip to Russia and China.

Those who had feared Mr. Attlee might fall victim to Communist flattery may be partly reassured by this report on Moscow. Mr. Attlee's stay there was brief, to be sure, and much of his time was occupied by official and semi-official functions, during which the Kremlin bosses were on their very best behavior.

Mr. Attlee found that Moscow has changed greatly since his last visit 18 years ago. It has a substantial number of new buildings, greatly increased automobile traffic, and people dressed far better than in 1936.

These evidences of progress have been remarked upon by other observers and can well be accepted—bearing in mind, however, that Moscow is far and away the most favored of Soviet cities, and living standards throughout Russia cannot be judged by Moscow alone.

Mr. Attlee was impressed by the tall and elaborate new government buildings. But he did not fail to see that behind this facade are many crumbling and decrepit structures, so that "the housing problem is appalling. There is intense overcrowding. . . . These are honest remarks.

One may perhaps be more skeptical as to whether Mr. Attlee has sufficient evidence for his impression that Mr. Malenkov is the dominant personality among Soviet leaders, or that his reception in Moscow was "a reflection of greater ease—ment or good fellowship brought about by the Geneva conference."

Mr. Attlee's reception in Moscow, after all, was carefully stage-managed by his Soviet hosts to produce just that latter impression.

But agree or disagree with any of Mr. Attlee's impressions as we may, they are certainly on a far higher plane of responsibility than some of the conclusions announced by Aneurin Bevan, who also made the trip.

Mr. Bevan is sure there "is no dictator in Russia," and there "will probably be no more dictators in Russia." We fail to see any real difference between a one-man dictatorship such as Stalin's or the dictatorship of a group such as exists today. And as for the future, Mr. Bevan's credentials as a prophet are questionable, to say the least.

To Keep Your Husband Young

By Simeon Stylites in the Christian Century

LET me give you a few facts on some marvelous ways by which a loving wife can and does keep her husband from growing old.

Biologists tell us that one sign of life is irritability. If there is no irritability, there is no life. It is rather hard to irritate a stone. The higher we go in the scale of life, the greater the response to irritation. "You never heard of a clam with a nervous breakdown. There is nothing it break down."

One life-preserving irritation which keeps intact the fighting spirit of youth in a husband is the well beloved voice in the car, making music like this: "See that red light ahead?" "This is a stop street." "You are too near the curb." Such music has no power to soothe the savage beast; it just makes it savager. And wards off old age.

One of our neighbors who will outlive Methuselah if irritation can bring it about is a man whose wife asks him every few days, "Did you see that article in the paper today about the correlation of lung cancer and cigarettes?"

One day in a fine fettle of irritation he asked, "You like that word 'correlation'?" Have you ever studied the correlation of conversation like yours and Reno, Nev.?"

The best recipe for a long life seems to be the mixture of affection and exasperation that every husband knows. Frances Warner writes truly that it is possible for a wife to irritate a man more by asking him three times whether he locked the back door than it is possible for his enemies to do with a libel.

Sept. 14, 1894—The call for tenders for the new postoffice has been advertised locally. They must be in by Oct. 19. The plans may be seen at the office of F. C. Gamble, Dominion Government agent.

Sept. 14, 1914—It was officially announced in Paris this afternoon that the Germans are retiring everywhere. They are abandoning all positions they prepared in expectation they would cover a retreat.

Sept. 14, 1934—The number of families on relief in Victoria during August was the lowest registered in the city for two years, a summary shows. The total for last month was 857, which was a drop of 34 from July.

'BY ANY OTHER NAME'

We have been told that the present government abhors patronage yet the defeated Social Creditor in Nanaimo was placed as sheriff by order-in-council, and the defeated minister of finance has been made a director of the PGE, and also appointed to a tour to Britain. Is this patronage, or does it gleam with a new light when dispensed by Social Crediters?

NORMAN PRITCHARD,

SPORTSMANSHIP

I'm a Canadian and proud a Canadian is proving to be the next greatest swimmer of all time. But why kick the defeated in the face because she's down? After all, what's two and one-half defeats in all her world-wide swims? These last two swims were bad luck.

It must have been quite an experience, having eels clinging to your legs on that long swim, but then so are a couple of sharks behind your tail at Catalina and a bunch of stinging fish at Gibraltar.

I hear a lot of guys say Victorians are poor sports—I didn't think much about it until now. Let's hope we show just a little feeling when the "old" one comes back next year, I sure am, and lots for our own, too.

"A VICTORIA TEEN-AGER."

The Game and the Prize

The entire nation hails the swimming feat of Marilyn Bell. It is a fitting addition to a year of miraculous sporting achievement.

As a record-holder who has carried the maple leaf to other countries, I can't help but feel that many attitudes attendant to her success are shortsighted to say the least.

We all know the difference between an amateur and a professional is that whereas the former pursues an activity, not for gain, but solely for the love of it, the latter performs for money (and sometimes for quite a lot of it). But do we also pause to reflect that the amateur, although burdened by a full or part-time job, is, by the gains of that same burden, freed to express his ideals, be they extreme or modest, in his chosen avocation. The professional, on the other hand, must depend upon his sport for his livelihood, and so long as he desires to earn his living, he must compromise on his ideals. Few of us are above criticism on this point.

In practice, amateur sport permits an intense rivalry, since gains and losses are to be measured only in terms of glory. But the professional is forced to be much kinder to his competition in order that all may make a living. Perhaps it was to this that Florence Chadwick alluded when she said that "the Ontario girls could swim the lake on any day of the year, while she was performing on invitation."

We cannot blame Miss Bell for this lapse of courtesy, for, at sixteen, she could hardly be expected to consider this angle of sport. But I deem it to be in the poorest taste for her trainer, who should be experienced enough to know better, to approve of the occasion for a record swim.

The presentation ceremonies were a shameful extension of the "hooray for our side" that is the ethos of high school sport. I say shameful because, while such adolescent self-aggrandizement is quite appropriate for people of high school age, it is hardly the emotional outlook of a mature people. The psychologists are not far wrong when they grant the average North American a mental age of 13 years.

The repeated vaunts that Canada, and those in it, are the best in the world are only too reminiscent of the myth of Aryan superiority nurtured in Nazi Germany (remember the '36 Olympics), the self-conscious, self-glory of Soviet Russia, and is the characteristic of the United States that Canadians most love to deprecate. It is only too apparent that athletic sport is a rather incomplete sublimation of that capital sport of kings—war.

People who try to set themselves on a pedestal, apart from the rest of mankind, are ignoring the work of anthropologists, whose years of research indicate that if there is any inherent difference whatsoever between peoples, it is negligible. Difference in athletic prowess depends upon hygienic living.

That you and I have had the good fortune to be born to that small portion of the world's population that, for a comparatively brief period, enjoys an advanced technology, is something for which we should feel thankful. To deserve the luxury of pride, we should do better to help our athletes in their early training, instead of withholding aid and approbation for years while they overcome indifference to gain some outstanding achievement.

Appropos of the first paragraph, may I compare the fabulous marathon run of Jim Peters with the recent swims of Florence Chadwick?

Such a marathon could have been run only by an amateur. Were Peters a professional, he would have had to be guaranteed an unconditional life-long annuity, for he has run himself right out of business. Such self-destruction, solely for the sake of glory, is a better expression of vanity than of intelligence. It takes courage, the difficult courage, to follow a sensible course of action when it calls for giving up coveted hopes and the faith of friends when it becomes apparent that achievement is impossible and perseverance will be rewarded only with a vain-glorious self-punishment.

As one who has raced to collapse on occasion, and at other times given up when advisable, I salute Florence Chadwick for exercising as much intelligence as athletic ability. I hope that she does not become discouraged with herself, because conditions were not favorable this year.

Don't think that I've soured on sport, far from it. I'll compete with joy and enthusiasm as often as time and health permit, but I do believe the motto of the Olympic Games, which goes to the effect that it is more important to play well than to win.

TOMMY PAWLICKI.

PROCESS OF GROWTH

I believe in instinct and conscience rather than reason, however useful the latter may be in dealing with practical matters. I regard life as a process of growth, and believe that we attract to ourselves the conditions best designed to promote that growth. This, indeed, may be part of the answer to the difficult and persuasive problem of the existence of evil. The plant needs the rain, the wind, the frost, as well as the warm sunshine, if it is to flower. I am satisfied that the intelligence so marvelously exhibited in the universe about me knew what it was doing when it impelled me into life, and that whatever it does with me when this life ends will be for the best too.

Shamrocks Demand 'Bone-Dry' Floor For Boxla Final

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

This won't be maudlin. But with the Shamrocks in far-off Peterborough ready to contest the lacrosse championship of all Canada, it does seem proper to flit with melancholia.

First, it should be explained that we don't intend to dwell on the respective merits of the Shamrocks and Peterborough Trailermen.

For after all, we shall soon know about all that through the words of our respected observer, Dennis Boyd.

Rather it seems appropriate, as the Irish finger the dirt surface that is Miller Bowl, home of the mighty Trailermen, to offer small but fitting homage to two members of the club.

This is so, because the individuals in question, Norm Baker and Arnold Ferguson, perhaps won't be Shamrocks next season. They have stated their intention to alienate their active affection with the game of lacrosse, their age not being compatible with the rigors of the sport.

Norm has already hung his stick to rest in his cellar, having taken to upholding the laws of the land, while Arnie is in Peterborough, hoping to get another piece of Mann Cup for his mantlepiece to go with his other silver collection.

Much has been written and much has been said of this pair, and most of the adjectives have been merited and reflect highly of their illustrious careers which have been strangely interlocking.

Fergie and Norm as Budding Stars

Their records of performance are legend in B.C. sport and have been since as far back as 1939. That's when Fergie's name started to appear with regularity in the summaries of boxla games of that era. And that's when 16-year-old Norm came down from Nanaimo to etch the first strokes of a brilliant basketball career. Their paths soon crossed competitively, as they were to interweave in the succeeding years until now apparently they have reached an end common to all athletic greats.

The years went by until Hitler's aggression called for sterner measures. But in the interim it was Fergie who helped make boxla headlines with Norm sharing that honor and writing new hoop marks in the off season.

It has almost been forgotten in its antiquity but there was a game at the old Willows Sports Centre that comes hazily to mind. St. Catherine Athletics, having failed in their Mann Cup endeavor at New Westminster, paid the locals a visit. And if memory serves correctly, Norm scored four goals, the Kits winning by the squeaky edge of 24-23.

But with the rigors of war now at hand, fate contrived that Norm and Arnie both show up at Pat Bay airport. And they were members of that Flyer team which lost to New Westminster Salmonbellies in the B.C. finals of 1943.

On cessation of hostilities, there came a call from New Westminster Adanacs which both answered. Ferguson stuck until Victoria became big enough to do its own Mann Cup hunting. Baker, his hoop wares being recognized, turned to the more lucrative professional field of casaba.

End Brilliant Careers Together

And it was thus until the Shamrocks were formed with Ferguson as coach. True to the script, Baker again appeared on the scene and was his usual hell-for-leather self until a leg injury almost wrote fins to his career. But this year he was back once more and was an invaluable member of the club.

Meanwhile, Ferguson had voluntarily relinquished control, but his contribution to the Shamrocks and lacrosse continued to grow. The tattered No. 14 hung on the dressing-room wall early this season, and it was sorely missed the while.

But now it's "30" to the essay. Baker's final paragraph has been inscribed in the book of standards reserved for only a select few, while Fergie will be penning his final opus with the Rocks at Miller Bowl, starting tomorrow night at Peterborough.

Somewhat, it seems that an era has come to an end. And somehow, it's hard to take.

City Rifle Marksmen Score Win at Nanaimo

Capital City Revolver and Rifle Association of Victoria took team honors Sunday in the Nanaimo Rifle Club sponsored second annual small bore rifle matches at Nanaimo range.

The local team captured first place with a score of 1,566, while Nanaimo was second with 1,527. Nanaimo first placed third with 1,520.

V. Finholm of Parksville won the matched target 50-yard section with a 200-15X score.

Totem Thourney Stays in Seattle

E. Warren Dawson of Seattle took over where Ralph Whaley left off in the annual Totem Pole golf tournament at Jasper Park. Dawson defeated J. Edgar Green of Seattle, 3 and 2, in the final to retain the Totem Trophy for the Broadmoor Golf Club. Whaley having won the honors last year. Women's champion was Mrs. F. Patterson. Dawson is being presented with the trophy by the Hon. J. J. Bowen, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta. (CNR Photo.)

Bionda Given Permission To Join Club

By DENNY BOYD

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. —The suggestion here today was that Marilyn Bell come to Peterborough and attempt to swim the treacherous waters of Miller Bowl, proposed site of the Mann Cup lacrosse championship series between Victoria Shamrocks and Peterborough Trailermen.

The outdoor, roofless bowl has been inundated after two nights and one day of steady rain and, when the team arrived in the well-scrubbed, sparkling little town of Peterborough Monday, it was in a steady, cold drizzle.

Driven to the bowl for a preliminary look, the Shamrocks were shaken to find it at least one third under muddy water.

Workmen were feverishly digging furrows into the dirt surface and driving spikes deep into the ground in an attempt to drain the floor in time for Wednesday's first game of the best-of-seven series. It was drying out quickly this morning.

The Shamrock management is adamant that it will not play the series in Peterborough unless the bowl is bone-dry.

If it is wet, and frankly, they hope it is, they will insist the series be shifted to Toronto, about 110 miles away.

However, this morning dawned bright and sunny, prompting several of the Irish to remark, "Look at that lousy weather." It is no secret—the Rocks are not happy at having to play the series at Miller Bowl, where they will be at a disadvantage, playing their first lacrosse on a dirt surface.

FIRST-CLASS DIGS

The team is quartered in a luxurious lodge called South Beach Hotel on the very edge of Clear Lake, 16 miles outside of Peterborough. The food and accommodations are first class and the team is in high spirits. The only thing that could be called a physical ill is the heavy head cold Arnie Ferguson is suffering through.

Officials of the Canadian Lacrosse Association were due to arrive in Peterborough today and the Shamrocks will huddle with them in an effort to clear up the bowl controversy.

Said a Shamrock official today, "We came here to play lacrosse, not mud-pies."

Shamrocks received one piece of welcome news this morning. Contacted in Toronto, Stafford Smythe, son of Toronto Maple Leafs' Conny Smythe, gave the Irish full permission to use Jack Bionda in the series. Bionda was due to report to training camp with Pittsburgh Hornets but Smythe gave the slender forward leave of absence for the duration of the Mann Cup series.

Charlie Simpson Gets In 'Dodo' Act

Charles Simpson became the third golfer to score a hole-in-one at city greens in less than a week when he ached his tee shot Monday at Victoria Golf Club.

Playing in a foursome with Major O. Cox, Robert Bruce and Fred McConnell, Simpson got his ace on the par-three, 225-yard seventh hole. He used a driver to perform the feat.

Cy Spaven scored an ace Saturday at Colwood and Ron Shea hit the cup at Gorge Vale the same day.

Braves Get Final Chance

Meet Giants In Crucial NL Series

Opportunity knocks tonight for the last time for the Milwaukee Braves.

The injury-riddled National League club limps into the Polo Grounds for its last three games with the leading New York Giants knowing that it's win or else.

There will be no more chances if the Braves blow any one of these. The New York experts to a man doubt that Milwaukee has enough momentum left from its great late-season surge to catch the Giants now.

New York holds a four-game edge over both second-place Brooklyn and the Braves in the vital "games lost" column. By now this column tells the story more accurately than do "games behind" figures, since the contenders each have played a different number of games.

CHANCES SLIM

The Giants would have to lose four of their remaining 12 contests to be caught by either team and would need to drop five to be passed, even if the Braves and Dodgers won everything from now until the end of the season.

Manager Charley Grimm of the Braves, ever his chipper self, said he would send towering Gene Conley against the Giants tonight, then follow with Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette. The fact that he's using the last two indicates his precarious position. They'll be pitching without their full rest, but he's got to go with his best.

Joe Adcock, Milwaukee's only .300 hitter, will not play, Grimm indicated. His injured wrist has not healed enough for him to take his post at first base, so Roy Smalley will be at the bag. "But," said Grimm, "I hope to be able to use Eddie Mathews. His sore ankle seemed to be all right last night, but I thought I'd give him another day of rest."

"This is a do-or-die series for us, but I'm still confident we can catch the Giants. We're 10-9 behind them for the year and it wouldn't surprise me at all if we won all three. We did it before."

CALCULATED RISK

Grimm is taking a calculated gamble by assigning Conley to the opener. The big rookie, suffering from a sore back, was shelved from the mound by the Dodgers Saturday without retiring a man. But neither club has been hitting much, so unless one of them snaps out of it, the series should be dominated by the pitchers.

Leo Durocher plans to send ancient Sal The Barber Maglie against the Braves in the first game. Durocher has not announced his pitchers for the second and third games, but they probably will be Ruben Gomez and Johnny Antonelli, the latter going with only two days' rest.

The Braves moved into New York after winning two out of three in Philadelphia. They took Monday night's game from the Phils 7-4. The Giants edged St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 in an afternoon contest and Brooklyn wasn't scheduled. Pittsburgh shaded Cincinnati 6-5 in the only other major league action.

$500,000 GATE LIKELY

Marciano 6-1 To Retain Title

NEW YORK (UP)—A surge of ticket-selling lifted promoter Jim Norris' hopes for another $500,000 gate today as Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles broke camp and prepared to come to New York for Wednesday night's return heavyweight title fight.

ROCKY MARCIANO heavy favorite

"Monday was a tremendous day at the box offices—the best day we've had," Norris said. "Our advance this morning was between $275,000 and $300,000."

Meanwhile, hammering workmen were erecting the ring and seats in Yankee Stadium, where champion Rocky and ex-champ Ezzard drew 47,585 fans and $543,092 for their thrilling first fight on June 17.

At Grossinger, N.Y., Marciano was reported "moody and withdrawn" as his handlers packed up the training equipment for the trip to New York. He will remain tonight in a New York "hideaway."

At Monticello, N.Y.—15 miles from Rocky's camp—Charles was exercising in the gymnasium before motoring into New York. He was reported as "calm and confident." The challenger will spend the night at a downtown hotel.

Unbeaten Rocky was favored at the long price of 6-1 to register his 47th straight professional victory. It was 31 he would stop the challenger.

A poll of 25 of the sports writers who will cover the fight was even more lopsided than the betting odds. Only one of the 25 picked Ezzard to win. That brave man was Barney Nagler of the Morning Telegraph (New York). Four others had confidence that Ezzard would last the distance, but they said Rocky would win the decision. The rest predicted a kayo/ by Marciano, ranging in rounds from three to 13.

Norris' selling surge announcement today was somewhat unexpected because only Monday he had admitted that the advance was about $50,000 less than expected. He particularly blamed hurricanes "Carol" and "Edna" for curtailing sales in New England.

Meanwhile, the weather bureau predicted rain for tonight and "partially clearing and cool Wednesday." In case of rain Wednesday night, the fight will be postponed to Thursday night.

Junior Mat Crown At Stake Tonight

Main event of tonight's wrestling card at Memorial Arena will be a match between Kurt von Poppenheim and speedy Roger Mackay for the junior light heavyweight championship. It also looms as a grudge battle.

Current holder of the belt is Von Poppenheim, the Proud Prussian.

However, he took the title from Mackay in a disputed bout one year ago and then refused the former champion a return match, with the result that Mackay has been naming himself as titleholder the past year.

Bouts get under way tonight at 8:30.

Padres Lift First Coast League Crown

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The San Diego Padres reign today as the new champions of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, having dethroned the Hollywood Stars in the pennant playoff game Monday night 7-2.

There's a new hero in Padre town. Bob Elliott, the 37-year-old ex-major leaguer whose two homers for "five runs alone were enough to whip the Stars, with whom San Diego tied at the end of the regular season Sunday. Hollywood lost its bid for a third straight flag.

There was joy in San Diego, indeed, Monday night as fans in the overflow crowd of 11,471

STRATHCONAS LEAD CITY BOXLA FINALS

Wayne Hetherington and Doug Flynn each scored two goals as Strathcona Cafe opened a best-of-three series for the city juvenile B lacrosse championship Monday night at Stevenson Park by whipping Oak Bay Shamrocks, 6-2.

John Gray and Ron Marshall added singletons for the winners, while Jack Showers scored both goals for Oak Bay.

Second game of the series is set for Thursday night at 6 at Stevenson Park.

B.C. BANTAM BOXLA FINAL HERE WEDNESDAY

A Victoria all-star bantam lacrosse team playing under Saanich colors is scheduled to meet a Mainland championship club Wednesday night at 8.30 at Memorial Arena in a sudden-death game for the B.C. title.

The local club will be bidding to retain its hold on the Byron Johnson Trophy.

Maple Leafs Look For New 'Kid-Line'

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (BUP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs opened training camp today with hopes of whipping up another "kid line" to rock the National Hockey League this season.

There were plenty of veterans among the 24 hopefuls who turned out, but three young finds from the Ontario Hockey Association brashly opposed them for the right to form the main front line.

The Leafs' hottest rookie was Brian Cullen, a flashy centre,

Mainland Riflemen Keep Shield

Mainland marksmen successfully defended the Butchart Shield at Heals Range Sunday by defeating a team of Vancouver Island shooters, 113-112.

Frank Sullivan of the Mainland group took high individual aggregate honors with a 146, which included a possible 50 from 600 yards. Frankie Morse of Victoria was runner-up with a 145.

Hepburn's Amateur Status Questioned

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Bill Rayner, sports editor of the Trail Times, said in his regular column Monday that Doug Hepburn, world heavyweight champion, had signed a professional contract.

"The strongest man in the world is just another paid performer," Rayner said.

Hepburn is touring interior British Columbia giving exhibitions of weightlifting and other feats of strength with a traveling show.

Rayner quoted Terry Forbes, director of the show, as saying he held a professional contract with Hepburn.

In Vancouver, Harry Brown, national weightlifting chairman for the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and a personal friend of Hepburn, said he had not heard of the heavyweight turning professional.

"I know he signed a contract to appear with the show—but that was just a guarantee that he would appear. The contract called for his expenses to be paid during the tour and for the show to make a donation to the Doug Hepburn gymnasium fund."

"Also, the troupe is going to put on a show to help us with our drive for funds. It was sort of a reciprocal agreement," Brown said.

"I know for a fact he wants to do more lifting later on. Besides, if he were going to turn pro, he would certainly do it on his own terms."

Jones Wins Easily

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Jones of Oakland, Calif., fifth ranking U.S. middleweight, won a unanimous decision over Jimmy Martinez of Glendale, Ariz., Monday night in the feature 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Jones weighed 156, Martinez 152½.

YANK PILOT SPEAKS
Must Be 'Awakening'
Says Casey
DETROIT (AP)—Manager Casey Stengel, his once-unbeatable New York Yankees all but dead as far as the American League pennant chase is concerned, spoke out today in an undertaker's dignified tones.

He indicated:
1. He'd be back next year indirectly.
2. Cleveland Indians have won the pennant.
3. There will be some radical changes in his club in '55.

Cleveland will be even stronger next year.
"Maybe this will do us all some good," said the professor, who was seeking his sixth straight world's championship. "There must be an awakening. Like the Yankees of old, we'll do something."

That was his hint that he'd be back at the helm next season, although in answer to a direct question, he snapped: "I won't talk about it because I don't have to. My contract ends this year. I can be fired by my owners. But I'm not worrying about that. I'm thinking of the club and what has to be done to improve it whether I'm here or not."

Parent Heads PNGA; Tourney Dates Frozen
SEATTLE (AP)—Jack Ellis of Vancouver, B.C., became heir apparent to the presidency of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association at Saturday's annual meeting as Rex Parent of Seattle stepped into the office for the 1954-55 season, succeeding Alec Hendry of Victoria.

Ellis was elected vice-president. The PNGA also decided to hold its annual tournament each year in the week following the Fourth of July. This will make the 1955 dates July 11-16 with Parent's home club, Inglewood of Seattle, as the host.

Ellis' club—Marine Drive—will be tourney host in 1956 with nearby Point Grey as assisting club. Sand Point of Seattle will assist Inglewood, acting as host for the early rounds of women's play.

The decision to "freeze" the tourney dates was made, Parent said, to help other organizations which wish to schedule non-conflicting tournaments.

Corydon Wagner of Tacoma won the President's Goblet, given annually to the low net scorer in a delegates' tourney held at the time of the meeting. Wagner, with a five handicap, carded a net 69 at the Seattle Golf Club.

American Golfers Win
A team of golfers from the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard at Bremerton, Sunday, captured the Taylor & Spencer Trophy by defeating an HMC Dockyard team from Victoria, 75-45, at Bremerton.

BLOW DUKE IN FINAL PERIOD

B.C. Lions Almost Win

An attempted lateral and pitchout proved turning points in two Western Inter-provincial Football Union games Monday night.

British Columbia Lions had a 12-10 lead in the fourth quarter until lateral Neil Ferris tried a lateral from behind his goal line after a wide field goal attempt by Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Jack Jacobs intercepted the ball and 16,000 Winnipeg rooters saw the Bombers win 22-17 over the luckless and winless Lions.

The theme was almost the same in Calgary where the Stampede and Edmonton Eskimos were tied 6-6 until Calgary halfback Glenn Christian grabbed an attempted pitchout from quarter Jackie Parker to Rolfe Miles in the third quarter.

Christian carried to the Edmonton 17 and Howard Maugh went over for the major and the Cowboys then rolled to a 20-6 victory in revenge for the 30-11 beating administered by the Eskies Saturday night.

Saskatchewan Roughriders lead the league with 11 points—five wins, one loss and one tie—while Winnipeg is second with nine points. Calgary trails the Bombers by a single point. Edmonton is fourth with four points and B.C. is without a point.

Winnipeg's points came from majors by Jacobs, Neil Armstrong and Bud Grant. Jacobs accounted for a rouge besides providing the payoff passes to Armstrong and Grant. Bud Korchak added a field goal and three converts.

Keith Bennett, John Wagner and Al Pollard scored majors for the Lions. Pollard converted two touchdowns.

Wagoner's major came when the former Ottawa Rough Riders fell on a loose ball behind the Bomber line after quarter Joe Zaleski fumbled on a pass attempt deep in his own zone.

BIG PASSING GAINS
Bombers made good on 16 of 25 pass attempts for 238 yards. The Lions went for 111 yards through the air on eight of 15 attempts. Winnipeg had 16 first downs to B.C.'s four.

Waugh got two of Calgary's five pointers. Quarter Ed LeBaron got the other. Tom Miner booted a field goal from the Edmonton 34-yard line and converted two majors.

Edmonton's points were scored by import tackle Bob Dean on two field goals—one from the 29-yard stripe and the other from the Calgary 22. Edmonton's Bill Briggs, carried off in a stretcher in the fourth quarter, returned to the bench before the end of the game and did not appear severely hurt.

Thrill Riots Rock Stockholm; Teen-Agers Clash With Police

By NIL HORNSTROM

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP)

—This is a thrill riot:

It is Saturday night, 11 o'clock, the scene is Norrmalm Square—the Times Square of Stockholm.

From the theatres, the movies, the restaurants swarm talkative couples. The street cars jangle into the square, unloading hundreds of youngsters from the outlying amusement parks and picnic areas.

For the first half-hour or so it's any big city in the gaiety of Saturday night, the jostling, laughing, calling for taxis; ogling the pretty girls, window shopping, kissing goodnight.

Suddenly there is a strange transformation.

On the outskirts of the square, teen-agers in leather jackets begin buzzing motorcycles faster and faster. Behind them sit their girls, shrieking in elation into the night.

Stocky youngsters begin bullying their way through the crowds. A fist fight begins and a ring of people forms around it. Fifty feet away another fight begins. The square is beginning to be jammed like New Year's Eve and the mob surges and wanes like milk in a saucer.

Suddenly the police—there all the time—charge. They use the blunt side of their sabres, swinging right and left against arms and legs. The nightsticks crack down on heads. The leather jackets are hustled into police wagons and off to jail.

But the attempt at order only intensifies the hysteria. It has become a game to elude the police, to drive the motorcycle faster and faster, to grab a stranger, call him a name and begin a fight. The teenagers now are attacking the police.

Gradually, the fever abates. Tourists and innocent bystanders who have come to watch the "fun" have long since fled. The police charges become more effective. The motorcycles whip off into side streets. The boys are retreating the battlefield, some of the younger ones weeping, some of those hurt crying for mothers.

But they will be back next Saturday night.

They have been every summer—and early fall Saturday since the war and each year the "thrill riots" grow more violent.

Sociologists are at a loss to explain them. Stockholm doesn't take them too seriously, mostly as a manifestation of youthful exuberance and in a nation that has stayed neutral in two world wars.

Swedes are a law-abiding, somewhat phlegmatic people, the liquor licensing laws are strict, there is no racial pattern, sex is not outstandingly evident as a motive.

But each summer the riots start anew. The same pattern, the same time, the same place. Only Stockholm's cold winters cool them off. When the chill nights grip the Square the youngsters are no longer there.

"GONE WITH THE WIND," on wide screen... Clark Gable as Rhett Butler and Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara in one of the never-to-be-forgotten scenes of David O. Selznick's production of "Gone With the Wind," showing at the Royal Theatre this week in its new wide screen presentation. Veteran Held After Mother Shot on Doorstep in Quebec

ILE BIGRAS, Que. (CP)—Police said Monday night they are holding a 41-year-old Montrealeur as a material witness in the shooting of 37-year-old Mrs. Dorothy Wallace on the doorstep of her home in this town, 13 miles northwest of Montreal.

Police identified the man as Lawrence Craig, released Monday from a 'Montreal veterans' hospital.

The woman died almost instantly after being shot through the heart by a bullet from a carbine before the eyes of her husband and three-year-old son. She was shot as she opened the front door of her home to answer the doorbell.

Police said Mr. Wallace told them he grappled with the gunman after his wife fell on the floor. He managed to wrest the rifle away from the assailant and threw it out an open window. Three more shots were fired during the scuffle, police said.

Wallace said the gunman broke away and fled from the house in a late model car.

Police said Craig was arrested in nearby Ste. Rose shortly after the shooting after a car he was driving collided with another automobile.

They said he was found in possession of several .32-calibre bullets. The bullets were the same type as were fired from the carbine at the Wallace home.

1,500 Grade Five Pupils Receive Swimming Lessons

Half of the 1,500 grade five youngsters in Greater Victoria schools, who returned to classes only a week ago after their long summer vacation, now are back in the swim again, literally.

The school swim program, initiated eight years ago at the grade five level, began its 1954-55 season Monday.

Half of the grade five population will be given eight weeks of swim instruction now, and the other half will get swimming lessons next term, around Easter time.

Each grade five class will be given a 40-minute lesson each week at the Crystal Garden. Youngsters are transported to and from the pool by chartered bus. Morning classes are at 10.35 and afternoon classes at 2.30.

There are five instructors for each class.

Shift System Confirmed For Cloverdale School

One more school has been added to the list of schools where the shift system has had to be introduced.

School board authorities announced today arrangements have been made to put two classes at Cloverdale School on the shift system, starting Wednesday. One class is a Grade 3 class and the other a mixed class of Grades 2 and 3 pupils.

Cloverdale is the fifth school in the Greater Victoria system to have the shift system. Others are Oaklands, View Royal, Doncaster and McKenzie Avenue.

Alex Turnbull, assistant municipal inspector, said the morning and afternoon operation had to be introduced at Cloverdale since it was found eight of the 10 classes there had more than 40 pupils—too many to accommodate at one sitting.

Mr. Turnbull offered hope the shift system would not spread to other schools, although he pointed out Strawberry Vale School was running close to the line and said just a few more pupils coming into that district might necessitate a similar plan.

TWENTY-THREE OIL PORTRAITS, some dating back to 1540, will be displayed for two weeks, starting today, at the Greater Victoria Arts Centre. Oils belong to Robert Hew Fergusson-Pollock, of Duncan, and are of his ancestors. Some are signed by Alec Naysmith, famous British portrait painter of 1800's. Walter P. Jeune, above, has just restored portraits which were marred when steam pipe broke in ship's hold bringing them out from Scotland. He values collection at $15,000. Mr. Jeune will give a public lecture on the portraits Friday evening at 8.30. "They were a joy to work on," Mr. Jeune said. "The pictures just talk to each other." (Times Photo.)

'I Wish I'd Killed Him, Too' Girl Told Constable After Knifing, Court Hears

VANCOUVER (CP)—A police officer testified Monday that Mary Mollish, 18, told him "I wish I could kill myself—and I wish I'd killed him, too."

Const. D. L. Dahl said the girl made the statement shortly before she was charged with murder in the death of Sam Messer, 22, last May 25.

Doctors testified in Supreme Court that it was virtually a freak chance that Messer bled to death from a stab wound that severed an artery.

Detective-Sergeant Archie Plummer testified that the victim had a record of three criminal convictions and had been arrested eight times in connection with narcotic possession.

Earlier, an eye-witness testified a party and quarrel preceded Messer's death.

The witness, Edith Geraldine Miller, a 17-year-old friend of the accused, said she couldn't remember whether Miss Mollish stabbed Messer or threw a knife at him.

The 22-year-old unemployed plasterer died in a hospital a few hours after being knifed in she decided to leave him."

Const. William Britton, first police officer on the scene, testified that Miss Mollish told him "I did it."

She told him they intended to be married in August but Messer wouldn't work and had taken to dope.

The constable said Miss Mollish told him she "couldn't see any future with this man so

Messer struck the girl on the face when she told him she was gathering her things and the girl then stabbed him, he said.

Shanghai's Trade, Shipping Hard Hit

Attlee Told Vice in Formerly Wide-Open City Now Controlled

EDITOR'S NOTE: Former British Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee has just completed a three-day tour of Communist China, which included a stopover in Moscow en route. Leading a Labor party delegation of nine, his aim was "to learn as much as I can about what conditions really are." Following is the sixth of seven exclusive articles in which he writes of his observations and of his reactions to what he saw and heard.

By THE RT. HON. CLEMENT R. ATTLEE

SYDNEY—We made a five-hour flight from Peking to Shanghai, flying over the flat plain, which is closely cultivated and set thick with villages. The only diversity was caused by the flooded areas. We had been told that the floods were under control and that the water was falling, but despite this the extent of the floods seemed to be very great.

Huge areas around the Yellow River and the Yangtze River were under water, with the houses of the villages standing out like islands. I had had a talk the previous evening with the Minister of the Interior, who has some of the functions of our Home Secretary. His principal task just now, however, is dealing with the consequences of the floods. These involved the evacuation of hundreds of thousands of persons and their temporary settlement in other areas. I gathered that they were mostly billeted with other families which, in the chronically overcrowded conditions of Chinese houses, must have meant great hardship.

Provision also had to be made for food, clothing and household goods. I understood that the work was being done largely by enlisting the services of volunteers, but to do it at all effectively called for considerable organizing ability. I have been impressed by the signs of this capacity in the Chinese to organize, notably by the way they have been able to work enterprises introduced here by the Europeans.

no animal transport. There are many pedicabs, which are used for conveying people as well as goods, but most heavy loads are handled by pushcarts. Two or three men pulling and one pushing a load of timber or flour is a common sight.

Similarly at the docks there are hardly any cranes. Beyond the use of ships' derricks the work is done by human labor. In this port, with so little traffic now, more than 200,000 laborers are employed, many of them casually. At every turn one realizes how great is the need for more mechanical transport throughout China. I learned that local production of lorries and cars is not expected for two or three years. Apparently the authorities are prepared to wait rather than resort to foreign supplies.

In Shanghai, as in Peking, one is impressed by some very positive achievements. Flies seem to have been successfully exterminated in the city, and so have been other long-standing evils. I inquired about the old problem of opium. I was told that when the present regime took over, every open smoker was registered and compelled to undergo treatment. The poppy is no longer cultivated and opium seems to be at an end. Information on this score from Chinese sources was confirmed by Europeans of long experience in this country.

These latter also informed me that organized prostitution is now practically unknown. work, such as transport, all the men and boys seemed to be

Chinese Experts Replace Russians

I was told that when Russian technicians were introduced into the country, they were replaced as soon as possible by Chinese. This, no doubt, is part of the doctrine of self-sufficiency, which is a prominent feature of the new China. I do not think the Chinese wish to depend on outsiders to run their institutions, even if the outsiders are Communists.

Shanghai, probably the third most-populous city in the world, was formerly one of the busiest ports. It had a big European population and was, in fact, the creation of British traders.

Today it offers many curious contrasts. There is the river, which looks rather like the Thames at Tilbury, a fine broad waterway, but its shipping has dwindled. There were only five large seagoing vessels in the port and we were told that even this was exceptional. There were a fair number of Chinese sailing craft, but these were quite small. Along the bund stood the stately buildings of great trading and banking houses, but none of them is now very active. Most of these businesses are eager to get away. Nevertheless, the city itself is intensely active and alive. Its streets are crowded and we were told there is little or no unemployment.

Here again one strikes an amazing anomaly. In this great city there are tramcars, motor buses, a few lorries and a very few motorcars but practically

Code of Morals Almost Puritanical

Shanghai at one time had a very indifferent reputation for law and order. Formerly no woman would have thought of going out-of-doors by herself at night, but Europeans told me that now they had not the slightest hesitation in allowing their wives and daughters to go anywhere. Nowadays, also, they had no fear of burglary. By whatever means a stern, almost puritanical code of morals is somehow enforced. Bribery and corruption in the public service are not tolerated; offenders are severely dealt with, while sexual offenses entail a very heavy penalty.

The manager of a big enterprise told us that pilfering is now practically unheard of. All this, it seems to me, is remarkable and apparently was brought about largely by the voluntary action of the individual citizens who regard these old evils as being unworthy of the new China.

But this puritanism is not incompatible with gaiety. Shanghai is full of theatres and cinemas. While there were there an old Chinese love story, "The Butterflies," was being played in 15 houses three times a day. We heard a concert by an excellent orchestra and choir, with instrumental and vocal solos. In addition to Chinese numbers there were renderings of Chopin and Beethoven.

I met at dinner a man who is considered the greatest operatic performer in China. He looked to me to be a man about 35 years old, but I was told that he was 62. Lady Lindsay recalled having seen him perform when she was a small child. The most surprising thing was that his greatest successes were in young girl's parts. I was told that he made up into a beautiful young girl. It appears that acting of men by women and women by men is quite usual on the Chinese stage.

STREETS JAMMED

Off the broad main streets of Shanghai are innumerable narrow alleys where the people live. The overcrowding must be terrible. By our standards the weather was pretty warm and, since the humidity is great, oppressive. No wonder, therefore, that the streets are full of men, women and children sitting about. What seems remarkable is the very high standard of cleanliness, both of persons and clothes. Except for those men engaged in heavy

Vancouver Truckers Hold Strike Vote

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A government-supervised strike vote of 1,200 truckers at 31 major cartage and store firms of the lower Mainland began today. The vote will last until Sept. 23. The companies asked that a government-supervised vote be held after truckers decided to hold a strike when they turned down a conciliation board's award of five cents an hour wage increase.

Typhoon Weakens 28 Dead, 16 Lost

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's mightiest typhoon in 20 years blew itself out in the Japan sea Monday. Indications were the toll from Monday's crushing blow would fall far below pre-storm fears. The national rural police reported 28 dead, 68 injured, 16 missing and more than 11,000 homeless on the southern-most home island of Kyushu. The toll was expected to mount as communications were restored in the remoter areas. At its peak the typhoon packed 125-mile-an-hour winds.

Suspicious Citizens Spurn $2 for $1 Offer

SHE WAS POLITE, but she was firm. "No thank you" said this pleasant woman today when offered a new Canadian $2 bill for $1 by Times reporter Tony Dickason. Nearby man wasn't interested either. Four of five approached refused offer. (Halkett Photos.)

Lady clutching parcel, practically sailed over reporter making bill exchange offer. She showed not the slightest flicker of recognition of money, muttered, "Thanks, but no."

But perception flashed quickly in eyes of Mrs. A. Peales (right), 1661 Earl Street when offer was made. She took only seconds to reach for her purse. Only comment was: "You look honest."

30-Year Kiwanian Named Leader Of Pacific Northwest District

By BILL PARKER

A 30-year Kiwanian was elected governor of the Pacific Northwest District Kiwanis International here today.

Fred G. Rounds, Pullman, Wash., was chosen by the 1,400 delegates at the 37th annual convention at the Empress this morning.

Mr. Rounds is a widower. An architect, he formerly was on the teaching staff of the department of architectural engineering for Washington State College. At present he is the college's supervisor of property inventory.

He is attending the convention with his daughter, Mrs. Jean Olson.

The new governor takes over from C. E. "Tommy" Thompson of Redmond, Ore.

"I'm walking into the job with my eyes open," he said today. "It's going to be a lot of hard work, but it will be worth it. Kiwanis aims and objects are my creed in life."

At Monday's convention session, Gordon MacPherson, governor of the Kiwanis "Key Clubs," the organization's system of youth clubs, hit out hard at an apparent lack of interest in the "Key Clubs."

Monday evening Kiwanians met in the Crystal Garden for a giant smorgasbord.

Following the feast, delegates moved to the Empress Hotel grounds for a band concert. The governor's reception and ball in the Crystal Ballroom concluded the evening.

The convention's final day will be devoted to panel discussions on the theme "Build By Faith, Loyalty and Service." Dinners tonight will honor the newly-elected officers.

RED CROSS BUYS CLOTHES FOR BURNED-OUT FAMILY

The Victoria Red Cross will see to it that the family of George Harris, burned out of a Belmont Road bungalow a week ago, wants for little when each member is out of hospital.

Generous friends, neighbors and newspaper readers throughout Greater Victoria donated cash and furnishings to a drive started by neighbors until almost all that remained to obtain was clothing, bedding and a new place to live.

Today, the Red Cross Disaster Service Committee, headed by Col. J. Q. Gillan, stepped into the breach and said the Red Cross will buy complete new outfits of clothing for the parents and four youngsters.

Mrs. Harris is out of hospital now and staying with a sister, but Mr. Harris, Kenny, six; Jeannie, three; Mickey, five, are still getting well at St. Joseph's. A baby, Georgetta, was untouched by the flames.

The Red Cross will also provide complete sets of bedding for the family.

Any persons who might be able to direct the family to a suitably sized house should phone Mrs. E. Moreton at 8-1061.

Single Revision Court For 4 Municipalities

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, in his capacity as minister of finance, has written the four municipalities of Greater Victoria notifying them that they will no longer set up their own courts of revision to decide appeals from ratepayers objecting to land and property assessments.

The premier has served notice that the government now is preparing to set up a three-man court of revision which will consider objections raised by any property owner in School District 61. Such a court is provided for in the government's Equalization of Assessment Act.

While the board will be named by the cabinet, each of the municipalities concerned is being asked to nominate three persons. The cabinet will make its selection from nominations received.

The court will have jurisdiction over Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, a large part of Saanich and View Royal.

Saanich council is the only body so far to make nominations. It has proposed that Reeve Joseph Casey and Cllr. S. W. Brock be members of the court of revision.

Drinks for Minor Bring Two Fines

Allan Daykin, 1873 Granville, in Saanich, paid $50 in city court today when he pleaded guilty to providing beer to another youth who was under 21. Option to the fine was one month in jail. Another youth, Walter Charles Pallen, HMCS Naden, paid $15 for being in possession of liquor while underage.

PRIZED POSSESSIONS of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), including this painting of its colonel-in-chief, HRH Princess Mary, were shown Hon. Robert W. Mayhew, retiring Canadian Ambassador to Japan, Monday night, during his first visit to the mess as the regiment's honorary colonel. Pointing to the picture with his cane is Col. Cy Peck, VC, veteran commander of the Scottish's Old 16th Battalion. On the right is Lt.-Col. Walter J. Mosedale, current commander of the regiment's militia battalion.

Candidates Disagree On Racing Issue

First By-Election Clash as Haw Reaffirms Stand Against Track

Two candidates contesting a one-year seat on Saanich council in the Sept. 18 by-election clashed today for the first time over major controversies in the municipality.

Dr. Ronald Grant, naturopath, said he was not opposed to a race track in the municipality provided the question was subject to a plebiscite.

But, he added, he was against the establishment of a race track on the city-owned property at Beaver Lake. This area, he said, should be reserved instead for a public park.

He suggested the race track be established in the Burnside area, near the Tillikum Theatre, providing the people in the district were in favor of the project.

Edwin Haw, labor official, the other candidate, refused to budge from his stand that no race track should be established in the municipality.

"We have no right to push the race track on other people," he said. "If one group of residents doesn't want a race track near their homes, they should not wish it on others."

LIBRARY PROBLEM

On the Victoria Library issue the two candidates also disagreed.

Dr. Grant said he favored a plebiscite to see if the people of Saanich wanted to continue its library services contract with the Victoria Public Library.

Mr. Haw said there was no necessity for a referendum.

He said he felt the referendum was designed in the hopes that Saanich residents would vote against belonging to the library.

"What are we going to gain by getting out of the library," he said. "The money will be spent on something else, probably."

The appeal of Dr. Raymond B. Rush, Vancouver, who was charged with murder of his wife but convicted of manslaughter, was set for Sept. 27.

Dr. Rush was sentenced to five years' imprisonment by Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in June.

Oscar Jorgensen, Vancouver, appealing a conviction of arson, will have his appeal heard Oct. 14. The case of Denny Kravania, Vancouver, sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary for conspiring to sell narcotics, was also set for Oct. 14.

NEW JUDGE WELCOMED

The court was jammed with lawyers to welcome Mr. Justice H. W. Davey as a new appellate judge. He was promoted from B.C. Supreme Court earlier this year.

W. C. Moresby, QC, senior member of the B.C. Law Society, J. G. Rutan, president of the Victoria Bar Association, and H. R. Bray, QC, representing the Vancouver Bar Association, expressed good wishes to Mr. Justice Davey on behalf of the legal fraternity.

Chief Justice Sloan welcomed him to the bench on behalf of himself and the other four members.

Gatyshtun Theft Trial Begins at Assizes

The criminal assizes opened today in Victoria with the trial of James Gatyshtun, of Victoria, charged with breaking, entering and committing theft in the office of Dr. W. E. M. Mitchell.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson is presiding. A. De B. McPhillips is acting for the Crown while James Proudfoot is defending the accused.

Gatyshtun is accused of stealing a steel-measuring tape from the doctor's office at 620 View Street. The case is continuing.

PC Functions Set for Hees

National Progressive Conservative party president and organizer George Hees is scheduled to arrive in Victoria Sept. 21 for a two-day visit.

His itinerary, which includes a luncheon at the Union Club and a reception at St. John's Hall, does not allow him to assume the role of peace-maker in the Conservative B.C. jurisdictional battle.

Mr. and Mrs. Hees will arrive at Patricia Bay airport via TCA at noon, Sept. 21. That evening, at 8.15, invited guests only will attend the reception.

On the 22nd, Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, will be host at a luncheon for Mr. Hees, while Mrs. Pearkes will act as hostess for a simultaneous luncheon honoring Mrs. Hees. Then Mr. Hees will leave for Nanaimo.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Will you please tell me what year talkies came to Vancouver, B.C., and what picture was shown?—Mrs. T. J.

A.—Memories are in agreement that the first talkie ever seen and heard here came to Victoria in 1928. It is highly probable Vancouver had its first talkie at the same time, but as no records of Vancouver theatre engagements are kept here, it is impossible for the Times to say what picture it was.

Q.—What is the altitude of Mount Wilson in Alberta?—H.G.M.

A.—That peak is computed at 11,000 feet.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Husbands and wives who have been going along through the years, quarrelling and making up in haphazard fashion, had better mend their ways.

It has just been revealed that there are Marquess of Queensberry rules for marital fights, and a man would be a cad indeed to go against these rules.

I stumbled across them in a modestly unobtrusive position on a page devoted to women, in one of the Weekly Magazines accompanying an unidentified newspaper.

So I cannot give due credit to the author; but I am sure you will appreciate and honor the rules nonetheless.

"A married couple that never quarrels is usually a dull pair," the unknown author starts out. "A quarrel has a tendency to brighten the flame of love."

(My own thought is, when the flame of love needs a real, solid brightening, try a hotfoot.)

"However," continues our expert, "quarrelling can be overdone. It should be brief. No lovers' quarrel should last over three minutes."

(This is obviously based on the principle of timed rounds in boxing, and is useful to let the male in the quarrel get his breath.)

"During the first year of marriage, quarrels should be limited to four minutes."

(Hey, wait a minute! D'y want to start another Long Count argument?)

"After six years of marriage, eight minutes is about the right time for a quarrel. Those married that long have more to quarrel about, more to get off their chest. Besides, a good quarrel gives the wife a chance for a much-needed emotional release."

(Why doesn't she go to the movies and have a good cry instead? By the time the couple reaches its 50th anniversary, they will be entitled to a fight along the lines of the War of the Roses.)

Our expert concludes her (I am sure it must be her) homily with the following: "It is unfair for any husband, who has been married six years or more, to leave the room during a quarrel and slam the door as he goes out before eight minutes have elapsed."

(Any rules regarding jumping through a plate glass picture window?)

Oh, well, this solves the problem of something different in wedding gifts.

Anyone know where I can get an automatic quarrel-timer?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Driving through a stop sign into a collision at Bay and Fernwood September 10 brought a $35 fine for careless driving to William E. Sheldrake in city police court today. Lewis P. Evans, who fell asleep and hit a pole while driving on Cook near Pembroke was given the same penalty. Both Sheldrake, who lives at 2840 Forbes, and Evans, 2754 Scott, will have their licences suspended.

Driving without first obtaining a licence brought fines of $25 each to Gerald B. Kirkham, HMCS Ontario, and John R. Sharpe, 1721 Quadra, in city police court today.

Saanich Council Monday approved a petition of residents of Adelaide Street for the installation of street lights and the paving of the street under a local improvement by-law.

Machinists Elect J. Bath

Jack E. Bath, 34, of 1725 Carick, was chosen as the new business agent of the Victoria Machinists, Fitters and Helpers, Local 3 (CIO-CCL) Monday night.

He will fill the vacancy created by the death on Sept. 4 of Jack Cornthwaite. Mr. Bath has been connected with the machinists' union for several years. He was a pilot officer on bombing missions in the Second World War.

The meeting was informed that T. Watt, representative for Burrard Shipyards in Vancouver and VMD and Yarrows here will be in Victoria Thursday to confer with bargaining groups of local and Vancouver CCL unions on new contract negotiations.

Fall season for B.C. Electric Glee Club members will begin tonight in the Flame Room, 1501 Douglas, with Mrs. Alma Wittick conducting and Mrs. Frank Allan at the piano. The 30-voice group sings ballads, spirituals, semi-classical and popular numbers. New male voices would be welcomed.

William H. Wagoner, Homestead, Florida, will present the wildlife film "Wanderland" as the initial program of Victoria Natural History Society's audubon screen tour this season. Showing will be Sept. 24 at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium.

Rather than pay a $250 fine for impaired driving, Robert E. Shea, 81 San Jose, will serve 12 days in jail, he told Magistrate H. C. Hall in Esquimalt court Monday. He collided with a fence at Tillikum and Colville, September 4, police said. A suspension of his license will be recommended.

A plumber and an electrician each suffered falls while employed in downtown Victoria on Monday. They arrived at the Royal Jubilee Hospital almost together. Both are 34.

Robert Ellis, 1157 Balmoral, suffered fractured ribs when a platform on which he was working collapsed at the Universal Sheet Metal, 500 Johnson. Robert Walker, YMCA, fell from a ladder when installing some plumbing at the Ritz Hotel. He has a possible fractured shoulder.

Minor traffic infractions resulted in fines for five drivers in Esquimalt court Monday. Alice M. Shook, 2550 Vancouver, paid $25 for driving without a license. Hugo Hucker, 1814 Quadra, paid $10 for passing on the right. Terrence Merkle, Townsend Road, was fined $25 for failing to have liability insurance while a minor, and John S. Welch, HMCS Naden, paid $5 for passing through a red light. Douglas Handel, 1200 Reynolds, was penalized $35 or five days when he was convicted of careless driving.

DROODLES

A certain Dr. Carl Gassoway, who frequently tries to better me (he never succeeds), has claimed that the correct title for this Doodle should be "Two Dots With Two Triangles." This man is an idiot and should be watched. Actually this Doodle will some day be considered an old master. Notice the magnificent design, the way it catches the dramatic moment in which the fleas no longer able to contain their enthusiasm, go wild with excitement. The occasion, I will now reveal, is the first dog show in history where the fleas were judged along with the dogs. The popular choice, "Flea Champion Skin Deep Beauty," has just been judged Best in Show when his closest rival, "Rover's Own Jumper," was unexpectedly scratched. By Rover.

Latest Hostess Rig Is the Hospitaltree

By PENNY SAVER

There are hundreds of trees in this old world, but who's ever heard of a "hospitaltree"? I have, I saw one today in a Victoria store. Nearly bought it for that matter.

A hospitaltree, my friend, is a tree made of wrought iron, the metal branches of which each hold a drinking glass. Base of this remarkable tree is a yellow plastic pot (that heavy, yet pliable plastic) which is used for ice and bottles of ginger ale.

What a rig for the hostess! She should get a "hospitaltree" to centre her buffet refreshment table. Let the guests serve themselves, I always say. They get just what they want at no extra effort to the hostess.

A hospitaltree, which stands roughly at two and a half feet, sells for $5.95.

Floating candles are becoming quite the things for table centrepieces. The idea isn't new, but the flower candles I saw today are. This type comes in red, pink and white and each has a yellow centre from which the wick burns. Also, each flower has a couple of green leaves. Really, they are the prettiest floating candles I've seen. Completely made of wax, they sell at $2.35 a box containing four.

What an unusual bridal shower gift a set of these would be!

Just the thing for another type of shower is the set of six baby's wash clothes. The clothes are neatly rolled and set in a row in a celluloid-topped box. My, they look pretty! There are two white ones and one each of yellow, pink, green and blue.

On the box there's a little card with the words "Love to Baby." Price for the set is only $1.

Introduce Children To 'Different' Foods

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Most people find it difficult to enjoy or even to eat food that is completely new and strange to them. For children, the problem is even greater than for adults. A mother writes:

Hurlock

(Q)—"My husband's relatives, even his parents, like to eat food as it is prepared in the old country. We have strictly American food in our home—quite simple but well-cooked and nourishing. When we go to the homes of my husband's parents or relatives for a holiday dinner, there is always the problem of the children's not eating a major part of the meal. The relatives urge them to eat and seem hurt when specially prepared food is left untouched on the children's plates. The children are four, six and nine years old, and all have good, healthy appetites at home. How would you suggest that I deal with this problem?"

(A)—As the food problem is related to your in-laws, surely you and your husband can explain to them that your children have been brought up on simple food and do not enjoy food that is rich or highly seasoned. Explain that children always hesitate to eat food that is different from what they are accustomed to.

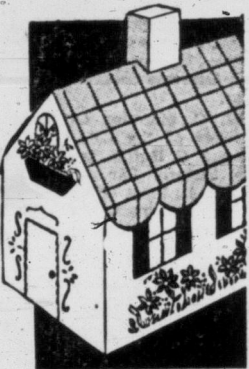

Then immediately suggest simple substitutes which they might provide for the children. It is a pity for your in-laws to spend time, energy, and money to prepare food your children refuse to eat.

On the other hand, you should explain to your children that when they are guests, it is polite and courteous to try to be gracious about the food their relatives offer them. Urge them to taste the food. They will doubtless find it far better than they anticipate.

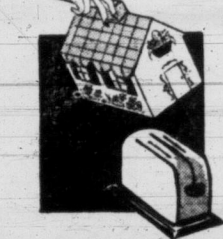

At home, make a habit of introducing more variety into the family menus so your children will become accustomed to trying out different foods. This is one of the best ways to break down a child's resistance to new and different foods.

TODAY'S RECIPE

MEATY TOMATO MACARONI

One pound ground beef, 1/2 cup chopped onion, 1/4 cup chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 can (1 1/4 cups) condensed tomato soup, 2 cups cooked macaroni (1 cup uncooked), 1/2 cup shredded sharp process cheese, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

Brown beef, onion and green pepper in shortening; stir in remaining ingredients; heat on top of range or bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 25 minutes. Sprinkle cheese on top, if desired; 6 servings.

Keep most-used utensils and foods near the stove to save steps in the kitchen. Seasonings, canned goods, serving dishes and utensils for top-of-stove cooking should be kept nearby. Vegetables that don't need refrigeration, graters, peelers and strainers should be kept near the sink.

Kiwanianes Welcome Visitors

At Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Monday afternoon, feminine visitors in Victoria for the 37th annual convention, Pacific Northwest District Kiwanis International, were welcomed at the tea hour by wives of local Kiwanis members. The tea was arranged in three sittings and the long line of visitors continued to pass the receiving line just within the front entrance from 3 until nearly

Half-Size Fashion

4806 14 1/2-24 1/2 by Anne Adams

The flattery of the double diagonal does wonders to sleek and slim the short, fuller figure! Ideal for many fabrics—especially silk, rayon, cotton. If you wish, add contrast accent to point up the smart details. Sew it now!

Pattern 4806: Half sizes 14 1/2, 16 1/2, 18 1/2, 20 1/2, 22 1/2, 24 1/2. Size 16 1/2 takes 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric; 1/4 yard contrast.

This pattern easy to use, simple to sew, is tested for fit. Has complete, illustrated instructions.

Send 35 cents in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this pattern. Print plainly size, name, address, style number.

Send order to Anne Adams, care of The Times, Pattern Dept., 60 Front St. W., Toronto 1-A, Ont.

Try this for something different in sandwich spreads: Cream together two parts butter and one part cream cheese and add prepared mustard to taste.

Dina Stewart and Valerie Parkin completed the trio of pretty sub-debs giving out the souvenir spoons. Feminine visitors are being entertained today at a tea in the Butchart Gardens.

Auxiliary Plans December Event

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Protect Others From Cold And Spend a Day in Bed

Yesterday I suggested that you might be able to avoid your usual fall and winter colds if you would avoid fatigue, loss of sleep and overeating, and take some vitamin D.

I also mentioned the fact that usually once a member of the family has a cold, sooner or later everyone in the family group succumbs. The germ takes the family like locusts take a field. There are some preventative measures which will be useful.

In the first place, the individual with the cold should be isolated whenever this is possible. His door should be kept closed and he should not wander about the house. Also, his silver and glasses and dishes should be kept separate and washed separately.

This may seem extreme when the malady is just a simple cold, but when we think of the sum-total of discomfort and loss of time and pleasure, we know that it is not.

The patient should use tissues rather than handkerchiefs and these should be disposed of immediately. When mucous dries the germs are released into the air. The cougher and sneezer should cover his or her mouth so that germs are not sprayed into the atmosphere.

Remember, too, that a day or so spent in bed at the very beginning of a cold will often make it short-lived. Whenever fever is present the patient should be in bed. Many of the serious aftermaths of a cold come from lack of care in this matter.

One last word; do not go to the office or to a party if you can possibly avoid it. A misplaced sense of nobility often spreads a cold to dozens of people. Mothers should keep their children away from school so that they will not infect others.

If everyone felt a sense of responsibility about not giving their cold to others, the number of colds each year would be greatly reduced. Of course this is not always possible, but in most cases it can be managed during the most contagious stage of the disease.

YOUR "B.C." Fruit PRESERVING GUIDE

Plan the Balance of Your Home Canning—NOW!

B. C. Prune Plums are now starting to arrive on the market in good volume, and their appearance marks the start of the last round of preserving for this season. During September there are always several varieties of "B. C." fruit on the market at the same time, which makes it easy to plan the balance of your home canning... easy to plan the selection you want to round out your stock... and easy to make those favorite preserves and jams which call for a variety of fruits to be all available at the same time.

Right now the quality of all B. C. fruit is excellent, and you'll like present prices which mean you can make plenty of thrifty preserves and jams to last right through until next season.

The following are all at the peak of their goodness now, and available in preserving quantities, at preserving prices.

B.C. PEACHES

B.C. BARTLETT PEARS

B.C. PRUNE PLUMS

Unbeatable for the finest home preserves, fruit salads, jams and conserves.

B.C. CRABAPPLES

Preserved for flavorful desserts and for new mealtime interest when served with meat courses. Economical jelly for that breakfast toast!

B.C. WEALTHY APPLES

The first all-purpose apple of the season—suitable for both cooking and eating out of hand. Excellent for pies and unsurpassed as a sauce apple. Preserve some now, for superior-flavored apple sauce all winter long.

Be sure the whole family enjoys the fresh-off-the-tree goodness of these fresh fruits often while they are in season—delicious fresh fruit desserts... fresh fruit salads... and simply eaten out-of-hand.

There's nothing so good as home-canned preserves and jams—be sure to "put up" enough!

The Fruit Growers of British Columbia consistently bring you the finest fruit at the best prices.

Vows Exchanged In Keating Church

Anne Margaret Muirhead wore a gown of white taffeta with lace jacket for her wedding to Thomas Earl Candler in Shady Creek United Church, Keating, recently. White and pastel gladioli decorated the church where Rev. G. H. Glover performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Muirhead, Clark Road, Brentwood Bay, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Candler, Royal Oak.

In her graceful gown, modeled in strapless style with lace jacket, the full skirt of ballerina length, the bride was a charming picture as she entered the church on her father's arm. A matching lace cap surrounded with a wreath of white carnations and all-white bouquet of carnations and heather completed her ensemble.

Miss Lesley Cowlishaw and Miss Margaret Puckett were bridesmaids in blue and pink respectively, their gowns being of net over satin in full-skirted ballerina style. Both wore white and pastel carnation wreaths in their hair and carried colonial bouquets to match. Ervina Robinson was best man and Fred Candler, brother of the groom was usher.

Dahlias decorated the Institute Hall at Brentwood, where a reception was held. Pastel sweet peas were used on the tables and a three-tier cake was cut. Sidney Taylor proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving for a honeymoon in Washington State, Mrs. Candler traveled in a flamingo silk dress, camel hair coat and wore black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and white heather.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. E. Brown, San Juan Island, Mr. and Mrs. D. Alton, Youbou, Miss E. MacKenzie and Mr. P. Mariacher of Vancouver.

PTA NOTES

Frank Hobbs—New members of the teaching staff of Frank Hobbs School will be introduced by principal, J. Hayes, at a meeting of the PTA on Wednesday at 8 p.m. Mrs. B. McColl and L. Sanderson will address the meeting.

Oak Bay High—An interesting program has been arranged for the first fall meeting of Oak Bay High School PTA which will take place Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the school library.

Doncaster-Cedar Hill — Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. members of Doncaster Cedar Hill PTA will meet in the auditorium of Doncaster School. Mrs. J. L. Moutray, immediate past president of the PTA Council will install officers and outline aims and benefits of the PTA movement.

The president, Mrs. Dudley Markham and Mrs. W. Findlay reported on the provincial VON meeting in Vancouver and Mrs. J. R. Davis spoke for the junior VON.

Preview of Fashion Show

In the artistic studio of Jan Zach, Ina Bain, right, a mannequin in an informal showing of fall fashions to be held in Eaton's Victoria Room, Thursday and Friday, gives a preview of one of the smartly-styled gowns for Mrs. George Nation, president, left, and Mrs. Philys Underwood, of the women's committee of the Greater Victoria Arts Centre, sponsors of the show.

Joyce Thompson Wears Gown Of Bridal Satin, Lace, Net

Joyce Lillian Thompson, who became the bride of Peter Adrian Visser, Saturday evening, wore a portrait gown of white satin topped with overskirt of lace and tulle, when she entered First United Church on her father's arm. A tiara headdress held her sequin-trimmed veil and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Rev. Frank Johnson performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, 2491 Trent Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Visser, Lethbridge, Alta. Pink and white gladioli decorated the church.

Miss Gloria Berry sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Harold Thompson, wore a gown of pale green taffeta and net. Miss Elaine Stewart was bridesmaid, wearing a similar gown in pink.

Little Miss Shelley Forrest, flower girl, wore a yellow frock. All attendants carried colonial bouquets of carnations and

Local Council of Women To Study Civic Rights

A vital and interesting series of study programs for the winter months have been planned by the Local Council of Women. At a meeting, Monday, in the music room of the Public Library, president Mrs. E. E. Livesey outlined the study.

October's meeting will include an introduction, basic human rights with a preamble to the United Nations, British principles of justice, the Declaration of Westminster, the British North America Act and the Citizenship Act.

At the November meeting members of the council will study the legislatures (Dominion, provincial and municipal), orders-in-council, commissions and the courts, their powers and functions.

The December meeting will feature groups with limited civic rights (Indians, persons in confinement and juveniles) and a summary of study.

Semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Council of Women, to be held Sept. 23 in Kelowna, was discussed. It was decided that the president and Dr. Henrietta Anderson be delegates.

Mrs. Livesey reported on the annual meeting of the National Council which she attended this summer at the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton. All provinces of Canada were represented at the meeting. Dr. Marion Sherman of the Local Council was elected national chairman of health.

Mrs. Livesey reported that re-elected president of the National Council, Mrs. Turner Bone, who represented Canada at the Inter-National meeting, has suggested that the tri-annual meeting of the Inter-National Council in 1957 be held in Canada.

At the national meeting, members studied women in public life, the effect on homes and families of working mothers, also housing.

Mrs. C. Richards is the newly-appointed corresponding secretary of the Local Council.

Decorations Festival Planned

A rummage sale in the Orange Hall on Oct. 30 and the popular Festival of Christmas Decorations on Dec. 16 will be projects of the Women's Auxiliary to Family and Children's Service for the next four months. This was decided at first meeting of the season, held at Spencerhouse recently.

It was reported that small cribs, play-pens, strollers and high chairs, new or in used condition, are urgently needed for foster homes and anyone wishing to donate these articles are asked to telephone the Family and Children's Service at Spencerhouse.

Mrs. A. M. Bell and Mrs. M. Laurie were named conveners for the rummage sale which will include a "specialty room" where better quality garments will be on sale while the regular rummage tables will be displayed in the main Orange Hall. New members welcomed at the meeting were Mrs. W. Williamson, Mrs. J. Heller and Mrs. O. Ireland. Following business, tea and cookies were served.

Langford—Meeting of Langford PTA will be held in the Community Hall on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

VON Nurses Busy Through Summer

At the recent board meeting of the Victoria Order of Nurses, Miss Marjorie Baird, supervisor of nurses, stated "the number of nursing visits has been larger than in either of the two previous summers."

Miss Baird also reported on staff changes and told of the new "body mechanics" course taken by the nurses.

Miss Ruby Simpson, was named captain for the Community Chest campaign for the district allotted to VON board members. Reports were given by Mrs. E. P. Gillespie, secretary; J. B. Barnum, treasurer; Mrs. W. Findlay, finance; L. deS Duke, motor and Harold Webster, insurance adviser.

The president, Mrs. Dudley Markham and Mrs. W. Findlay reported on the provincial VON meeting in Vancouver and Mrs. J. R. Davis spoke for the junior VON.

Belated Law Stops Speeding On Legislature's Bypaths

By TOM GOULD
Times Legislative Reporter

The provincial cabinet has got around to clearing up one of those little things that keep cropping up in the administration of B.C.'s government.

The cabinet has passed an order-in-council to stop people from speeding on the grounds of buildings held in the name of the Crown, such as Vancouver's court house, and Victoria's Legislative Building.

For many years, there have been signs warning motorists not to exceed 10 miles an hour. But there was nothing on the statute books, provincial, civil, or federal, to enforce the ruling.

Maybe you didn't know it, but until today you could have torn past the main entrance of the Legislative Building at 70 miles an hour, thumbing your nose at the nearest policeman.

Today, thanks to an unobtrusive, routine, order-in-council, it could cost you up to $300, with a minimum penalty of $10.

The order makes it illegal to exceed the speed limit signs posted for pathways, driveways, grounds, lanes, etc., etc., on grounds of provincial buildings, buildings under construction, nearly constructed, or in a state of reconstruction.

Luckily, perhaps, not many people knew they could get away with speeding in such spots, but police in Vancouver did have trouble with speedsters who likened Vancouver court house property to a dirt race track.

Now it's the law.

Engineer Protests Condition Of Traffic Signs in Saanich

A provincial government traffic engineer living in Saanich complained to Saanich Council Monday that traffic control signs are generally in a poor condition due to vandalism and the lack of maintenance.

J. F. Harding, 2555 Sinclair Road, in a letter cited as an example the traffic signs on Cadboro Bay Road, Sinclair Road and at Richmond and Lansdowne Roads.

Mr. Harding made two recommendations:

1. That the municipality erect all regulatory and warning signs at a minimum of five feet above the crown of the road.

2. All stop signs should be reflectorized as night traffic volume in Saanich is heavy.

He pointed out that if the stop or warning signs are placed five feet above the ground they will be more noticeable to drivers and the damage by vandalism would drop considerably.

The council also received a letter from G. L. Simons, 3425 Cook Street, requesting a crosswalk at Camrose Crescent and Cook Street. It was referred to the police commission for a report.

Victoria Air Cadets Capture Many Honors

By ROY "CAP" THORSEN

Achievements of individuals and teams brought national recognition to 89 (Kinsmen) Air Cadet Squadron here.

Sponsored by the Kinsmen Club, the squadron plans even bigger things in its new season of operations, now beginning. This year the squadron will have spanking new and more adequate quarters for training. Most of the top floor of the RCAF Urban Centre on Yates Street has been earmarked for its use. Officers of the unit, which is commanded by FH-Lieut. E. A. McGowan are currently recruiting in junior and senior high schools for 14 to 18-year-old lads.

During the summer, the squadron sent 32 cadets to camp at Abbotsford where they joined 1,000 other lads from the four western provinces and the Yukon.

The squadron's rifle team, under the guidance of civilian instructor Bert Drysdale, won the national shield. Their scoring average was 97.1. They placed third in competition for teams of all services.

Team was composed of FH-Sgt. Robert Kitley and Cpls. Wilbur Jay, Lyle Begg and Noel Ridout. In B.C. competition, FH-Sgt. Kitley was selected to be on the four-man RCAF Comox team. His "possible" virtually won the Galtely trophy for Comox. In the more recent DCRA shoot in United States. On this RCAF-sponsored trip, W.O.2 Russell visited New York City, Washington and numerous places in Pennsylvania.

FH-Sgt. Edward McPhillips, 17, was selected to attend a nine-week senior leaders' course at Camp Borden, Ontario to train as a future instructor in the air cadet movement.

He was one of the 33 picked from the 100 attending the course to represent Canada in the international drill team competition at Minneapolis Exhibition. The team was edged out by an American group.

Topping all the laurels won by the squadron this year was a scholarship to Canadian Services College—College Royale Militaire, St. Jean, Que.—won by FH-Sgt. Taylor. He hopes to secure his electrical engineering degree—and officials say that, as a repayment to the RCAF, he has agreed to serve a three-year term as an officer.

Research Expert Dies in Car Plunge

Dr. L. C. Coleman Victim of Crash

Victim of an early-morning car crash, Dr. Leslie Charles Coleman, CIE, died at St. Joseph's Hospital shortly after 9 a.m. today. He was 75.

Dr. Coleman was described by experts as the foremost cancer research scientist in Canada and was venerated by the people of Mysore, India, whom he served for 25 years.

He died about three hours after police extricated him from his demolished car. It had plunged from Royal Oak Avenue into the culvert at 5.45 a.m. Police thought light fog which blanketed the area might have been responsible for the accident.

The fatality was the first traffic death in Saanich this year, the fifth in the district.

The elderly doctor had been on his way to work at the Dominion Pathological Laboratory near the Dominion Experimental Farm in Saanichton. Authorities there said Dr. Coleman made a habit of beginning his laboratory day at about 6 a.m.

LOUD CRASH

The sound of the crash wakened residents in the area adjacent to where Royal Oak Avenue joins with the Pat Bay Highway at 5.45 a.m. Saanich police said a Mr. Vickers phoned and when the patrol car arrived at the scene three minutes later he assisted. "My whole house shook at the crash," he said.

The car was on its side and Dr. Coleman was pinned with one leg under the seat and the other out the door with the door jammed closed against it. His head was badly injured and his face cut.

The combined efforts of Sgt. J. Hamilton and other residents and officers rocked the car free of the driver and he was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital. He had several hip and head injuries.

The car was towed to Saanich police station.

"MOST OUTSTANDING"

Dr. Coleman, who lived at 2136 Fernside Road, was currently employed with cancer research for the Canadian Cancer Institute. Little more than a year ago, director of the Canadian Research Foundation at Toronto, Dr. G. W. Warwick, described Dr. Coleman's work as "... the most outstanding of any research supported by the Cancer Institute in Canada."

He made the statement to Dr. William Newton, head of the

Maine Elects Democratic Governor

From UP and AP Dispatches
PORTLAND, Me., (UP) — Maine voters sent the political weatherman spinning dizzily today by electing their first Democratic governor in 20 years while returning to office every major Republican candidate.

Edmund S. Muskie, 39-year-old Democratic national committeeman, defeated Governor Burton M. Cross, 51, in Monday's first United States state election of 1954.

In modern times, no other Republican governor has ever been denied a second term in Maine.

The Republicans, however, sent Margaret Chase Smith back to the U.S. Senate for a second term and kept their three members of the federal House of Representatives.

"My election was a crystallization of a long-time general feeling that all was not right with state affairs," Muskie said. "It is also possible the national climate affected the voters."

Northwest Kiwanians Choose New Governor on Final Day of Convention Here

Business cares dropped like proverbial sizzling potatoes, as 1,500 Northwest District Kiwanians in convention at Empress "liven it up" a bit in last day of meet. Left, Karl Hermann, West Valley, Spokane, resplendent in plaid cap and matching bow, gets tie adjustment from fellow Spokaner Andy Andenberg. Right, victory kiss from daughter, Jean, lands on cheek of newly-elected district governor of Kiwanis

International, Fred G. Rounds of Pullman, Wash. A Kiwanian 30 years, he heads biggest international Kiwanis district on continent. (See story, Page 13.)

ACROSS CANADA WITH MONSARRAT GANDER FIRST STOP AS FOG HALTS PLANE

The hair-trigger schedule and meticulous planning of this trans-Canada tour has fallen flat on its face already. I meant to start the journey at St. John's, Newfoundland. But I never got there—not on Day One, anyway. St. John's was fogged in, and our plane put down at Gander instead. It didn't matter. Gander has given, the countless thousands of trans-Atlantic travellers, their first glimpse of Canada. It might as well do that for me.

We landed about mid-day—forty-four of us, a few angry, a few depressed, most of us not caring a great deal either way. Trains—Canada Airlines, with their usual efficiency, went to work on the refugees. They found us beds if we wanted to stay overnight, or a train to St. John's if we preferred to press on; the air-borne del-hards were given dinner and the promise of a plane next morning. I put myself, contentedly, in the last category.

A CHEERFUL SPOT
Gander is a huge, cheerful, totally air-minded caravanserai, surrounded by trees, scrub, water, and cool sunny air. Every week, 400 planes fly in and out; every week, 11,000 passengers, in 23 different airlines, make it their temporary home.

It was very crowded, the night we spent there, with some of those 11,000 passengers, and aircrews in a dozen different uniforms; with servicemen, children, bush-pilots, and us. They have a cocktail bar there called the Big Dipper, open for transients twenty-four hours a day. They have a restaurant, ditto. They also have a lot of planes, continually landing and taking off; necessary to an airline, no doubt, but not good for sleep.

So instead of turning in, I sent off five postcard views of the Big Dipper, and wrote my daily quota of words. These are some of them.

Later, a large efficient man from CBC came up with a welcoming smile and a tape-recorder. He had recently interviewed the said) Haile Selassie, Humphrey Bogart, and a sister of Zsa Zsa Gabor. How about Monsarrat?

ON GERMAN ARMS SCHEME

Eden Wins Four Nations To New Plan

ROME (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden won Italy's support today for rearming West Germany as a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The Italians said they also would be willing to accept West Germany as a partner in the Brussels defense pact that links Britain's armed forces to the Continent.

Whereas the Italians told Eden they preferred West Germany in NATO, they admitted the second alternative might ease French fears that a re-armed Germany would outweigh other partners in a European defense alliance.

ARMED BALANCE

Britain refused to join the now-rejected European Defense Community (EDC) despite the French demands. As a member of the 1948 Brussels Treaty Organization, however, her armed forces automatically balance those of a rearm West Germany.

Eden conferred with Italian politicians after "reaching a complete agreement" with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Bonn Monday on plans to restore West German sovereignty and rearm the country.

PARIS LAST

Eden, now making a "super salesman's" tour of the western European capitals, already had found supporters of the British plan to rearm Germany among the foreign ministers of Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

His final stop will be Paris and a meeting with Premier Pierre Mendes-France, whose parliament killed EDC in a devastating vote that damaged Adenauer's position.

CANADA INFORMED

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Secretary Eden will confer with the Canadian high commissioner, Norman Robertson, on Eden's return from his six-day western European tour, a Canada House spokesman said today.

The meeting, the third recently between the two diplomats, will provide the Canadian government with a full picture of Eden's findings in the wake of the collapse of the European Defense Community and the reception accorded on the Continent to his proposals for rearming Germany.

In addition, Canada will be among North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries to hear a private report by Eden Thursday in Paris. Eden is expected home later that day.

WIRE BRIEFS

Richards Quits Sox

CHICAGO (UP)—Paul Richards has resigned as manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Marty Marion will replace him effective tonight and for the 1955 season, the Sox announced today.

Richards will become general manager of the Baltimore club, presumably on a three-year contract at $50,000 per year.

Body Washed Ashore

VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP sought today to identify the body of a man found washed ashore near the searchlight towers at Point Grey.

Marlene Advances

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (UP)—In her second round match of the Women's Amateur National Golf championship, Marlene Stewart, Canadian champion, defeated Mrs. John Capers, Ardmore, Pa., 4 and 2.

More Bus Fare Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP)—Separate appeals to the provincial cabinet against recent B.C. Electric bus fare increases on the Lower Mainland will be made by Burnaby, New Westminster and Vancouver. There will be no joint appeal by the municipalities involved.

30 Feared Killed

LISBON, Portugal (UP)—Twenty-one bodies had been recovered today from the wreckage of a holiday train derailed in southern Portugal, and authorities feared the death toll may reach 30 or more. More than 120 passengers were injured.

Love Walked in— Busmen Walked Out

LONDON (UP)—The labor movement won a victory today, but love lost a battle.

Dennis Crook and Christina Orum went back to work, ending a strike which had tied up several of London's bus routes for several days.

The strike was off and so for the moment, were their wedding plans.

Dennis is a bus conductor and Christina is a bus conductress. He is 26 and she is 23 and, as such things will, they fell in love.

They saved their money and planned to marry. To get enough, they started to work overtime.

This, it seemed, was against union policy. So 500 of their co-workers at the London transport commission's Willesden garage went on strike, his locking bus services in many areas, and forcing thousands of Londoners to walk.

Dennis and Christina were shocked, but they quickly joined the picket line to help.

Rodeo Cruelty Trial Started

Animals used in the Cowichan Exhibition rodeo at Duncan Friday and Saturday suffered "unnecessary abuse," Mrs. Judith Zach, president of the Anti-Rodeo Society of Victoria, said in Duncan police court today.

She testified at the trial of Foss Hoy, Fraser Valley, owner of some of the animals used in the rodeo. He was charged by Mrs. Zach and Capt. and Mrs. James Barr, also of Victoria, with causing cruelty to animals.

Defense counsel J. Davie of Duncan recounted an instance during a performance when a rider fell from his horse and was dragged along the ground.

"While this was going on did you exclaim 'Good! Good! Step on him!'" Mr. Davie asked.

"I probably did," Mrs. Zach answered.

She also said horses were "tortured by a strap under the groin, and that she had heard a horse 'gasp and groan' when it came out of the chute.

Her evidence was corroborated by Capt. and Mrs. Barr.

Victoria Shamrocks will insist that the Canadian lacrosse championships be moved if weather conditions at Peterborough do not allow for a dry floor for the series opener scheduled Wednesday night.

Club officials made this fact plain today as they awaited the arrival of CLA officials in Peterborough, writes Times staff reporter Denny Boyd from Peterborough.

Boyd, who is covering the series for The Times, intimates that Miller Bowl, the outdoor box at Peterborough, is more suited for a swim attempt by Marilyn Bell, than for lacrosse at the moment.

His story appears on page 8.

Fired Upon, Fishermen Charge

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Two Swedish fishermen reported today that they had been fired upon by unidentified foreign warships in the Gulf of Bothnia—the northern arm of the Baltic Sea between Sweden and Finland.

Swedish Navy spokesmen said they had received reports on the firing but expressed doubts as to their authenticity. The spokesmen said details did not jibe.

Russian Girl Betters Own Record

LONDON (AP)—Galina Zybyna of Russia today bettered her own world record for the shot putt with a throw of 16.28 metres (53 feet, 4.95 inches). Her old mark was 16.20 (53 feet, 1.80 inches).

The record was established during competition in the USSR track and field championships at Kiev. Miss Zybyna is the Olympic and European champion.

Gillnetters Make Fabulous Haul

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some 1,800 gillnetters hauled in between 200,000 and 300,000 sockeye for their best night of the season Monday night as the fabulous Adams River run prepared to make its upstream surge to the spawning grounds.

The International Pacific Salmon Commission ordered a 10-day closure of the fishing starting at 8 a.m. Thursday in expectation of the main upstream move of the sockeye.

Air-Sea Search on for Jet Pilot

CHATHAM, N.B. (CP)—An air-and-sea search was on today for the pilot of a jet aircraft from the RCAF base here which crashed into Northumberland Strait. Name of the pilot, the only occupant of the aircraft, was withheld pending notification of kin.

'WAS SO SCARED'

Girl Gives
Court Details Of Stabbing

VANCOUVER (CP)—"I didn't intend to hurt him. I was so scared I didn't know what to do."

This was the tearful explanation given in assize court here today by Mary Victoria Melish, 18, on trial for her life for the knife slaying of her dope-addicted boy friend, Sam Messer, in a downtown roominghouse May 25.

Under persistent cross-examination by prosecutor John Faris, Miss Melish maintained that she had not intended seriously to hurt Messer when she stabbed him twice with a butcher knife.

She said he had hit her once during a quarrel that night and looked as though he was going to strike her again when she grabbed the knife.

The accused girl, whose parents were separated when she was 10, said she first met Messer just before she left school at 15.

The decision to live with him followed a quarrel with her mother, she testified.

During one of their frequent quarrels, Messer threatened her life, the girl said. (See earlier story, Page 11).

ON TO ST. JOHN'S

Next morning we got into gear again, and flew down to St. John's, in fifty-five minutes, as against eleven hours in the train. The relief plane took us smoothly across green country, hundreds of lakes (Newfoundland is 30% water), and miles of timber land. The cut timber

Dr. L. C. Coleman
Cancer Worker
Victim of Crash

Victim of an early-morning car crash, Dr. Leslie Charles Coleman, CIE, died at St. Joseph's Hospital shortly after 9 a.m. today. He was 75.

Dr. Coleman was described by experts as the foremost cancer research scientist in Canada and was venerated by the people of Mysore, India, whom he served for 25 years.

He died about three hours after police extricated him from his demolished car. It had plunged from Royal Oak Avenue into a culvert at 5:45 a.m. Police thought light fog which blanketed the area might have been responsible for the accident.

The fatality was the first traffic death in Saanich this year, the fifth in the district.

The elderly doctor had been on his way to work at the Dominion Pathological Laboratory near the Dominion Experimental Farm in Saanichton. Authorities there said Dr. Coleman made a habit of beginning his laboratory day at about 6 a.m.

LOUD CRASH

The sound of the crash awakened residents in the area adjacent to where Royal Oak Avenue joins with the Pat Bay Highway at 5:45 a.m. Saanich police said a Mr. Vickers phoned and when the patrol car arrived at the scene three minutes later he assisted. "My whole house shook at the crash," he said.

The car was on its side and Dr. Coleman was pinned with one leg under the seat and the other out the door with the door jammed closed against it. His head was badly injured and his face cut.

The combined efforts of Sgt. J. Hamilton and other residents and officers rocked the car free of the driver and he was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital. He had several hip and head injuries.

The car was towed to Saanich police station.

'MOST OUTSTANDING'

Dr. Coleman, who lived at 2136 Ferndale Road, was currently employed with cancer research for the Canadian Cancer Institute. Little more than a year ago, director of the Canadian Research Foundation at Toronto, Dr. G. W. Warwick, described Dr. Coleman's work as "... the most outstanding of any research supported by the Cancer Institute in Canada."

He made the statement to Dr. William Newton, head of the

Tired Marilyn Delays Studies

TORONTO (UP)—Marilyn Bell's advisors told the disappointed 16-year-old swimmer today that her new role as Canada's No. 1 celebrity may keep her from going back to classes and classmates for at least a year.

Hot agents said several big New York booking agencies were interested in handling the little Lake Ontario swimmer in a career that might take her eventually to Hollywood.

They said a definite announcement on her future might be made—within two days.

"She has to realize that she is a professional now," one of them said. "She's just another Barbara Ann Scott as far as her career goes—only two years younger."

Marilyn had hoped to start her classes today, but instead she met with her advisors to discuss problems connected with her mass of prizes, presents, offers for endorsements and further contracts. She appeared
